ROOSEVELT PRAISES CAPITAL.

And the Last Republican Legislature.

COMMENDATORY WORDS

From the President of the United States —Edwin S. Stuart Quickly Disposed of a Democratic Issue.

STATE CAPITOL A NOBLE BUILDING

[Special Correspondence.]

Harrisburg, October 9.

Since the visit of President Roosevelt and his magnificent tribute to the Pennsylvania legislature and his most complimentary allusions to the beautiful state capitol, Republicans hereabouts have been in excellent spirits.

The president certainly gave high praise to the work of the Republican majority in the senate and house for the legislation passed at the recent extra session of the general assembly, which was called at the instance of a Republican governor, and of which President Roosevelt said:

"It is surely not too much to say that this body of substantive legislation marks an epoch in the history of the practical betterment of political conditions, not merely for your state, but for all our states. I do not recall any other state legislature which, in a similar length of time, has to its credit such a body of admirable legislation."

In leading up to this commendatory reference to the legislation enacted by Pennsylvania law-makers the president in referring in detail to the laws passed at that extra session said:

"I most heartily congratulate the people of the state of Pennsylvania upon what its government has accomplished during this present year. It is a remarkable record of achievement.

"Through your legislature you have abolished passes; you have placed the offices of the secretary of the commonwealth and the insurance commissioner upon an honorable and honest basis of salary only by abolishing the fee system; you have passed a law compelling the officers and employes of great cities to attend to the duties for which they are paid by all the taxpayers, and to refrain from using the power conferred by their offices to influence political campaigns; you have prohibited the solicitation or receiving political assessments by city employes; you have by law protected the state treasury from depredation and conserved the public moneys for use fluence political campaigns; you have by a law for the protection of the elective franchise made tampering with the ballot boxes and the casting of illegal votes so difficult as in all probability to be unprofitable; you have provided a primary election law which guarantees to the voters free expression in the selection of candidates for office; you have by law regulated and improved the civil service systems of your greatest cities; and, finally, you have passed a law containing a provision which I most earnestly hope will in substance be embodied likewise in a law by the congress at the coming session—a provision prohibiting the officers of any corporation from making a contribution of the money of that corporation to any candidate or any political committee for the payment of any election expenses whatever."

President Praises Capitol.

Possibly the president's reference to the new state capitol has been the subject of greatest gratification here.

"Governor," said President Roosevelt, in addressing Governor Pennypacker, "this is the finest state capitol I ever saw."

Looking in admiration upon the splendid structure, examining in detail its magnificent furnishings, praising its architectural beauty, and its grand proportions, the president was most enthusiastic in his comments.

Every one who has seen the new capitol cannot but speak in the highest terms of praise of the character of the workmanship and the materials employed in its construction.

It is a source of satisfaction to the taxpayers of the state to know that every dollar expended upon the building and its furnishings was collected in taxes levied upon corporations. Not a penny was contributed from any other method of taxation.

Attempts are being made to manufacture campaign material for the Emery Democratic state campaign by insinuations that there has been extravagence in the furnishing of the building, but every citizen of Pennsylvania has been assured that this matter will be thoroughly investigated and every item examined into.

Stuart Meets "An Issue."

Edwin S. Stuart, the Republican nomineee for governor, was the first to meet this issue. He had no hand in the work of erecting or furnishing the building, but he has made quite clear the course he will pursue when he shall be elected governor.

Upon this subject Mr. Stuart has made this prepared statement:

"It has been said that we have constructed the finest capitol in the country.

"In alluding to this, however, I do not wish, nor do I propose, to be misunderstood.

"Whether the capitol is entitled to the high praise which has been accorded to it or not, if, in its construction or furnishing, there has been any fraud or willful extravagance—which to my mind is almost the equivalent of fraud—surely there is no man who will not agree with me that those who have participated in or profited by such fraud should be met with prompt punishment, and also be compelled to make restitution.

"If elected governor, I promise you, fully realizing the responsibility resting upon me, that I will see that a thorough investigation shall be made of the entire question, and if such investigation discloses that any man or set of men have been guilty of wrong-doing in the abuse of their trust, or guilty of fraud or illegal profit in the furnishing of supplies, they shall meet with the punishment they surely, under such circumstances, would justly deserve.

"If, as I am informed, the money spent in furnishing the capitol was without specific itemized appropriation first having been made for the purpose, I would recommend to the legislature that in the future it shall be made unlawful to expend any such large amount of money without first having a specific appropriation made, based upon an approximate estimate of the cost.

"Any other course is in opposition to correct business principles and contrary to the safe, economic policy that should govern all expenditures of the people's money."

It is a Noble Building.

Robert S. Murphy, the Republican nominee for lieutenant governor, in commenting upon this "issue," said:

"The new state capitol is one of the noblest buildings to be found within the limits of the country.

"There is not a man or citizen of Pennsylvania that can view that magnificent structure without a sense of pride, without a feeling of thankfulness that he is a citizen of Pennsylvania, and that this great state, with its population of seven million people, with its great wealth and material resources, with its reputation abroad as not only the keystone of Republicanism, but the keystone of the republic, is entitled to a building of that character."

In referring to the itemized statement of the expenditures in furnishing the new capitol, made by Governor Pennypacker and Auditor General Snyder, Mr. Murphy said:

"No man has ever heard the honesty or the integrity of a member of the board ever questioned, publicly or privately. I submit that before you decide this case in your own mind you must hear the testimony and you must analyze it, and I desire to say here that they themselves have furnished the testimony, upon which they are willing to stand or fall. The public statement of Samuel W. Pennypacker, under his own hand and seal, indicates precisely how that large sum of money has been expended, and it has been spent in equipping and furnishing that great capitol, in ornamenting it, in decorating it, and completing it, and I am not willing to take the uncorroborated testimony of our opponents that there has been any wrongdoing upon the part of the officials vested with the power of completing that work.

"But I say to you that I here express myself in complete accord with my colleague upon the ticket and that if there is any man or set of men who have through conspiracy or fraud robbed the treasury of the commonwealth of Pennsylvania in that undertaking, I say to you that every one of them should be thoroughly questioned, and if found guilty properly punished.

"The Republican party does not and never has stood for anything but what was right and proper in the administration of public affairs, and she is today as fair and as honest as ever."

AMNESTY FOR POOR CUBA

Taft Issues Decree Pardoning Rebels.

C. E. MAGOON ARRIVES

He Assumes Duties as Provisional Governor When Taft Leaves—Marines Leave Cienfuegos

ON ACCOUNT OF THE YELLOW FEVER

Havana, Oct. 10.—Charles E. Magoon, the newly appointed provisional governor of Cuba, arrived here on the steamer Mascotte. Coincident with his coming Governor Taft gave out a general decree proclaiming amnesty not only to the rebels, but to all persons charged with political offenses or crimes in any way connected with the revolution. He also issued orders covering the attitude of the American marines and soldiers toward the people of Cuba.

Complete pardon is granted to all persons involved in the killing of Congressman Villuendas at Cienfuegos in September, 1905, as well as to everybody implicated in the killing of several rural guardsmen at Guanabacoa last February.

Trouble is predicted by some Cuban publications as a result of this decision to withdraw the prosecutions against the murderers of Villuendas.

The proclamation serves notice that armed bands breaking the law will be proceeded against and denied the benefits of amnesty.

The proclamation recites that the insurrestionary forces have been disbanded, that active and organized hostilities have ceased and that it is the purpose of the provisional government to promote the restoration of normal conditions of peace favorable to the early re-establishment of Cuban self-government.

The amnesty is declared to cover rebellion, sedition and conspiracy. It gives immunity from prosecution for seizures and expropriation of property for military use by the insurrectionary forces and proceedings already under way for offenses which are amnesties are ordered to be discontinued forthwith. Prosecutors are ordered to have the proclamation applied to cases in which judgment already has been rendered and further to those in which sentence is being served.

The appearance of yellow fever at Cienfuegos caused the immediate issuance of an order by Colonel Barnett directing that the American marines be removed from that city. The men were marched aboard the ships.

Three cases of yellow fever have been reported in that city.

A launch carrying Governor Taft, Assistant Secretary of State Bacon and Captains McCoy and Marti, aides to Governor Taft, hurried out to the Mascotte. There followed another launch with General Funston and his aide, and a third with a committee of Cuban newspaper men who carried huge bouquets of flowers to present to the two ladies. Governor Taft and his party boarded the Mascotte, but returned at once with Mrs. Taft and Mrs. Bacon, General Bell and the general's aide Captain Wright. The flowers were delivered to Mrs. Taft and Mrs. Bacon with a brief address of welcome.

Upon arriving at the palace Mrs Taft and Mrs. Bacon entered their private apartments and then Governor Taft, Mr. Bacon and Mr. Magoon had a long conference in the governor's office.

Following this conference Mr. Magoon received the members of the press. He declined to discuss his plans for the future. He said he would take up his residence with Minister Morgan, as the minister's guest pending the departure of Governor Taft and that he might continue to reside there is he found it convenient.

General Bell will reside at the army headquarters in Marianoa, occupied during the first period of American intervention by General Lee. General Funston will make his headquarters at Camp Columbia.

A Creditable Concert.

A good sized audience greeted the Ithaca conservatory concert company at the Petrikin Hall Thursday, and those who were present heard a very pleasant concert. The company is a strong one and every number on the program was heartily encored. The work of Miss Chandler on the violin was of an exceptionally high order. The company deserved a crowded house.

HUNTINGDON PRESBYTERY.

Session Held in the First Church at Clearfield.

Huntingdon presbytery held an important session at Clearfield last week.

Rev. Samuel Moody was elected moderator, Rev. W. K. Brooks permanent clerk and Rev. L. N. Leith reading clerk. Rev. N. H. G. Fife, D. D., reported for the committee of arrangements. A committee was appointed to consider ways and means for the employment of a presbyterial evangelist and report at the adjourned meeting in Tyrone November 12.

The committee on the organization of a church at South Altoona reported its action in meeting with the congregation there holding a conference with them the sermon being preached by Rev. J. E. ### ROBBERY AT ROLAND

Post Office and Store Entered by Thieves

For the second time within about six months the Post Office and the store of Morrison & Glen at Roland, Centre county, has been the scene of a sensational robbery.

Following closely upon the robbery of F. P. Blair's jewelry store at this place it has caused considerable excitement. The Roland robbery occurred Sunday night and the Blair robbery the previous night.

The robbers drilled the safe, and after charging it, pilled a wagon load or two of dress goods on and around the safe to deaden the explosion. The charge was so heavy that the door was blown to pieces and the sides of the safe bulged out From the safe they got $76 of the money order fund, and stole the money order book.

They also took the money order stamp, so that they are now in a position to forge money orders for most any amount.

From the store they stole the same two revolvers that were stolen three months ago, when two boys, Gordon and Dale robbed the store and postoffice. They also took a number of knives and other valuable stuff. So far there is no clue to their identity.

THE BROUWER MURDER TRIAL

Arsenic and Glass Found in Body.

OF MRS. F. BROUWER.

The Sensational Murder Trial Now in Progress at Tom's River, New Jersey.

OTHER INTERESTING NEWS OF THE DAY

Toms River, N. J., Oct. 10. — The principal features of the testimony at the trial of Dr. Frank Brouwer, accused of the murder of his wife by the administration of poison and ground glass, was the testimony of Prof. Frederick Genth, of Philadelphia, the expert chemist, who analyzed the contents of alimentary canal taken from Mrs. Brouwer's body. In his testimony however, Dr. Genth with reference to the jars in which the organs were placed admitted that particles of glass found by him on the outside of the stomach had undoubtedly been broken off the jar in putting on or taking off the cover. He had previously testified to the finding of a number of particles of glass in the intestines, but under cross-examination the fact that in one instance at least pieces of glass found had come from the jar containing the organ was brought out.

Professor Genth's testimony was that he found arsenic in the brain, kidney, intestines, liver and muscular tissue. The total amount obtained was 0.0328 grains of white arsenic.

The pieces of ground glass varied in size from a pin point to a little larger than a pinhead. At this point the witness produced a small tube in which were the pieces of glass he said he had discovered in the intestines. It was handed around to the lawyers and then to Dr. Brouwer, who asked for a microscope. With this he carefully examined the tube and spent about five minutes looking it over. He was perfectly cool and composed.

Dr. Cattell, who made the autopsy, testified that Mrs. Brouwer's death might have resulted from arsenical poisoning. He said he had failed to find indications that death had resulted from natural causes.

Miss Una Dudley, one of the nurses who attended Mrs. Brouwer during her fatal illness, testified that she had not administered to the sick woman hypodermic injections prepared by Dr. Brouwer for that purpose, but she was not allowed to tell why.

Theodore J. R. Brown, the county prosecutor, in opening the case against Dr. Brouwer, said that Mrs. Brouwer was first taken ill on the night of September 13 with violent pains and vomiting which he said were symptoms of poisoning. She was then treated by her husband. In a subsequent attack a nurse was called in to attend Mrs. Brouwer and Dr. Brouwer, the prosecutor said, gave the nurse something which he said was medicine with instructions to administer it. He then went to Lakehurst. Mrs. Brouwer became worse and another physician was called in under whose care she partly recovered.

On the Sunday before she died Mrs. Brouwer was again taken ill, said Mr. Brown, and showed symptoms of poisoning. At that time a nurse was attending the patient in the day and Dr. Brouwer in the night. The doctor relieved the nurse at 9 p. m. Sunday and Mrs. Brouwer died in great agony at 4 o'clock the next morning.

"As Mrs. Brouwer lay there in bed, the victim of her husband's murderous designs," said Mr. Brown, "two nurses alone suspected what he was doing. They saw that the hypodermic injections which caused her untold agony and convulsions instead of giving her relief. The prescriptions for the injections were made by another physician who was attending the case and were made by Dr. Brouwer."

A Delightful Evening.

Monday our talented townswoman, Mrs. Harriette Kurtz, gave a most interesting talk on Switzerland. Her descriptive powers clothed in chaste beautiful language, carried her appreciative audience of our most cultured people with her from start to finish, in fact it was so real we almost imagined ourselves whirling through the many tunnels, sitting at the foot of the Jung Frau Queen of the Alps or viewing the ever changing scenery of Lake Lucerne. The W. C. T. U., parlors were well filled, and after the talk a pleasant social time with "light" refreshments closed a delightful evening.

BIG TELEPHONE MERGER.

Local System in Five States United—Orvis and Spangler are Directors.

Col. J. L. Spangler and Judge Ellis L. Orvis are interested in big telephone company which takes in local companies in five states. The United Telephone & Telegraph Company, of this place, is one of the companies in the merger.

Arrangements are about concluded for the consolidation of 15 local telephone companies in Pennsylvania, New York, Ohio, Maryland and West Virginia into the American Union Telephone company, which has been organized, with an authorized capital of $25,000,000.

The companies generally to be merged by lease or through stock control already have traffic arrangements with the Keystone Telephone company in Philadelphia and at Pittsburg with the Pittsburg and Allegheny Telephone company. This makes a long distance service, but the connections are not good.

The object is to unify into one system and to standardize and develope the several local telepone systems, and at the same time to strengthen the long-distance service, particularly in Pennsylvania.

About 40,000 telephones are now operated by the companies to be brought under his management.

Percy M. Chandler of Philadelphia is a director and one of the chief promoters of the new telephone company. James Kerr of Clearfield; John W. Garland of Pittsburg; Lyman E. Gilbert of Harrisburg; Rembrant Peale of New York; H. Prenties Taylor of Pittsburg; S. P. Light of Lebanon; Ellis L. Orvis of Bellefonte; A. W. Lee of Clearfield; W. P. [illegible] of Erie; J. L. Spangler of [illegible] William Kaul of St. Marys [illegible] G. W. Reily and B. F. Myers, of Harrisburg, and J. Sloat Fassitt of Elmira are the other directors.

JEWELRY STORE ROBBED

Frank P. Blair's Store Entered by Burglars Early Sunday Morning.

Sometime between 3 and 5 o'clock Sunday morning burglars broke into Frank P. Blair's jewelry store in the Brockerhoff block and carried off considerable jewelry. Their means of entrance was from a window on the north side of the building, the second window from the Allegheny street corner. They first cracked the glass then reached in and opened the catch in the window and after crawling in pried open the front doors.

All the most valuable jewelry and plate is locked up in a large safe and this the thieves did not attempt to enter. But they carried off 35 gold watch fobs, a gold watch chain, one watch and a number of baby rings. Mr. Blair places his loss at $200.00. There is no clue to the robbers.

Death of James O'Bryan.

James O'Bryan, a well known citizen of this place, died at his home on East Logan street Sunday at 12:15 noon. He has not been able to work for the past twenty-four years. On Thursday he grew worse and gradually sank until death ended his sufferings. His ailment was dropsy.

The deceased was born at Pine Grove Mills, Centre county, July 5th, 1844, and was the son of James O'Bryan Sr., When a young man he learned the cabinet makers trade and at one time was in the undertaking business in Bellefonte.

He is survived by his wife and the following children: Mrs. James E. B. Green, of Altoona; Mrs. James Stickler, Mrs. Thomas Hazel and Mrs. Harry A. Smith of Bellefonte. There are six children dead.

The funeral took place Wednesday afternoon at 3 o'clock from the house. The services were conducted by Rev. William M. Rearick. Interment in the Union cemetery.

No More white Sugar.

Unless the United States Pure Food Commission changes its mind, the people of the United States will soon be using granulated and other sugars that have a distinctly yellowish tinge. The commission has decreed that no mineral blousing substance be used in bleaching sugar, and the refiners and their chemists are much disturbed. Sugar chemist say that they use four pounds of a mineral blueing substance to every one million pounds of sugar, for bleaching purpose. This, the sugar chemists say, is not adulteration; that it is merely purification by a thoroughly healthful process. The Pure Food Commission cannot see it in that light, and insists that the whitening process must be abandoned. If this is done, the result will be that all sugar refined under the commission's new direction will be of a distinctly yellowish shade.

The Revolution In Unhappy Cuba

GONZALES DE QUESADA.

THE Cuban revolution began about the middle of last August and was therefore but a few days over a month old when Secretary Taft of the war department and Acting Secretary Bacon of the state department set sail from Tampa on the cruiser Des Moines on the mission of peace they were commissioned to prosecute by the president. It is seldom that in so short a time so much occurs in a country to produce conditions of anarchy and industrial chaos. As President Roosevelt in his now historic letter to Minister Quesada put it: "For seven years Cuba has been in a condition of profound peace and of steadily growing prosperity. For four years this peace and prosperity have obtained under her own independent government. Her peace, prosperity and independence are now menaced, for of all possible evils that can befall Cuba the worst is anarchy."

When Cuba set up as an independent republic one of the first things done was to contract a big debt in order to pay off the veterans of the revolutionary army. This was done in the belief that revolutions were at an end and that the industries of the island would provide revenue for the expenses of government. When the insurrection broke out in August the government had about $13,000,000 in the treasury, and the extra session of congress, recently called, authorized President Palma to draw on other than war funds for the purpose of suppressing the opponents of the government.

Senor Palma's executive residence is the old palace formerly occupied by the Spanish captains general. It was in front of this the marines from the cruiser Denver were stationed after their landing in Havana and before their recall at the instance of President Roosevelt.

The investment of foreign capital in Cuba, the building of railways and introduction of modern methods and appliances in the cultivation of tobacco, sugar and other plantations had brought Cuba to a stage of industrial and agricultural prosperity never before known. But when a country is overrun by contending armies and crops are seized or burned, beasts of burden are carried off to satisfy the hunger of the warriors in the woods and labor in general is in a state of suspense and anxiety, cultivation of plantations becomes practically impossible. Fall is the planting time for the tobacco crop, and so little has yet been planted that next year's crop will be very small. The success of the sugar crop has also been threatened. Under these conditions foreign investors have become alarmed as to their losses through the insurrection, and intending investors have been frightened away.

VICE PRESIDENT CAPOTE AND THE PALACE AT HAVANA.

Senor Gonzales de Quesada, who was made the recipient of the president's views concerning the Cuban situation, was at the head of the Cuban junta in this country prior to American intervention and the Spanish war. He was born in Havana in 1868, but was educated in the public schools of New York city, at the College of the City of New York and Columbia university. His paternal grandfather was a wealthy Cuban landholder who once refused from Spain the title of Marquis de Santa Cruz. His family lost their wealth through the troubles of the island, but money came to him through his wife, and much of her fortune was devoted to aiding the revolutionists, who, with American help, finally won freedom from Spain.

At the outbreak of the insurrection there were rumors that General Mendez Capote, the Cuban vice president, was plotting against President Palma with the view of succeeding to the executive office himself. Subsequent events, however, supported the view of his loyalty to his chief. He was at one time president of the insurgent government established by the Cubans in their last struggle for independence, is a graduate of the University of Havana, has won eminence as a lawyer and has been governor of Matanzas province.

SEVENTY-FIVE MEN ENTOMBED

Explosion Caused Disaster at Mine at Bluefield, W. Va.

Bluefield, W. Va., Oct. —As the result of an explosion at the West Fork mines of the Pocahontas Collieries company, where the explosion of 1902 occurred, in which Superintendent O'Mally and 16 others lost their lives, 75 men are supposed to be entombed. Two rescue parties have entered the mines and brought up two men named Dolbert and Godash. Both were revived.

The mine is reported to be on fire and the work of rescue is retarded. The cause of the explosion is not determined. Great excitement prevails in the neighborhood of the mines. Crowds of men, women and children remained around the drift mouth anxiously awaiting news of relatives and friends among the missing.

The explosion took place in what is known as the St. Paul entry of the mine. Reports of the number of entombed men vary from 60 to 100. The lack of brattice cloth helps to retard the rescue work and a car load of it is being hurried forward on a special train.

The definite results of the explosion will not be known for perhaps 12 hours.

The force of the explosion was hardly noticeable at the mine's mouth, as the entry in which it occurred is two and a half miles in the mountains. A number of men in the South mine were almost suffocated before they were rescued.

SHIP OFFICERS STRIKE

Demand Higher Pay and May Tie-Up Baltimore Shipping.

Baltimore, Md., Oct. —The fight of the licensed officers of the steamboats of the Baltimore, Chesapeake & Atlantic and the Maryland, Delaware & Virginia Railway companies for higher pay is fairly on, and the men express themselves as satisfied with the result of the first day's fighting, which would seem to be in the nature of a stand-off. Four boats scheduled to sail did so, while four others that were to have sailed remained tied to their wharves. The officials of the companies express themselves confident that they will be able to cope successfully with the situation by putting the winter schedules into effect somewhat earlier than usual.

The men demand an increase in pay. Captains have been getting $75 to $100 a month, first mates $40 to $60 and second mates $30 to $40, which they claim is altogether inadequate, considering the services rendered and the responsibilities assumed. The advances asked range about 25 per cent. The commander of a steamer on any of the routes involved must hold a government license, which can only be obtained after a certain term of service and the passing of a difficult examination as to routes, distances, etc.

JEWEL THIEVES ARRESTED

Negro Couple With Rich Booty Captured at Roanoke, Va.

Roanoke, Va., Oct. —A police officer arrested Marshall Parker, a negro, and his mulatto wife, who goes by the name of Lillie Russell-Brown Butler Parker, at Pulaski, Va. The couple had jewelry on their person to the value of $10,000, and Parker had $400 in money. They are wanted at Philadelphia, where it is alleged the woman robbed the home of Mrs. Mary Tatem at 2052 North Park avenue, that city on September 18 last. A Philadelphia detective arrived and took charge of the prisoners and jewelry, but later the local authorities, believing there was a reward for the stolen valuables again took them in charge. The negroes will demand [illegible]

Nature's Way Is Best.

The function strengthening and tissue building plan of treating chronic, lingering and obstinate cases of disease as pursued by Dr. Pierce, is following after Nature's plan of restoring health.

He uses natural remedies, that is extracts from native medicinal roots, prepared by processes wrought out by the expenditure of much time and money, without the use of alcohol, and by skillful combination in just the right proportions.

Used as ingredients of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, Black Cherry-bark, Queen's root, Golden Seal root, Bloodroot and Stone root, specially exert their influence in cases of lung, bronchial and throat troubles, and this "Discovery" is, therefore, a sovereign remedy for bronchitis, laryngitis, chronic coughs, catarrh and kindred ailments.

The above native roots also have the strongest possible endorsement from the leading medical writers, of all the several schools of practice, for the cure not only of the diseases named above but also for indigestion, torpor of liver, or biliousness, obstinate constipation, kidney and bladder troubles and catarrh, no matter where located.

You don't have to take Dr. Pierce's say-so alone as to this; what he claims for his "Discovery" is backed up by the writings of the most eminent men in the medical profession. A request by postal card or letter, addressed to Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y., for a little book of extracts from eminent medical authorities endorsing the ingredients of his medicines, will bring a little book free that is worthy of your attention if needing a good, safe, reliable remedy of known composition for the cure of almost any old chronic, or lingering malady.

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets cure constipation. One little "Pellet" is a gentle laxative, and two a mild cathartic.

The most valuable book for both men and women is Dr. Pierce's Common Sense Medical Adviser. A splendid 1008-page volume, with engravings and colored plates. A copy, paper-covered, will be sent to anyone sending 21 cents in one-cent stamps, to pay the cost of mailing only, to Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y. Cloth-bound, 31 stamps.

The Girl and the Davenport

By FANNIE HEASLIP LEA

Copyright, 1906, by E. C. Parcells

In the twilight of a secondhand shop on Royal street Van Holden saw her first. She came toward him down an aisle of shadow between old mahogany sideboards and dusty armoires and laid her gray gloved hand upon one end of a quaint davenport on whose other end reposed the hand of Van Holden.

"This davenport," she said to the shopkeeper, "is the one you reserved for me, is it not?"

"Pardon me," said Van Holden firmly—the davenport was genuine mahogany and of a good shape—"I have just bought it."

The shopkeeper, a little creole with voluble eyes and a fierce mustache, looked from one to the other.

"Mais oui," he murmured politely, "it is vair good davenpo't"—

"You promised yesterday afternoon," she said with icy dignity, "to reserve it for me. I must have it. I wish it upholstered in the green rep you showed me, and I want it by Thursday morning."

"Pardon me"— Van Holden began again.

She ignored his existence and drew a card from her case of snakeskin.

"Here is my address," she said, scribbling something thereon, "and I will give you a check on delivery of the davenport. Eighty dollars I think you said?"

Van Holden's sense of humor, assisted by the pleasing picture of pale hair and gray eyes in a cool pale face against a background of cobwebbed walls, began to rise.

"I was to have had it for fifty," he suggested plaintively.

"I will give you eighty for it," she said to the shopkeeper. And her face was noticeably less pale.

"It ees vair good davenport," said the shopkeeper, twisting his fierce mustache. "I pay hun'erd dollar fo' it, but I take eighty. Yas, I take eighty."

"Oh, you do?" said Van Holden sarcastically. "What about the fifty I'm giving you? I suppose you take that too? Now, see here, my man." He smoothed out the check between his fingers.

"If you have paid for it," said the lady icily, "I shall of course not take it. I had not understood"—

"Pray do not consider me in the matter," said Van Holden, with equal promptness. "I shall not take it now." He thrust the check into his vest pocket as the shopkeeper's dirty fingers closed clawlike over the lady's card.

"Upholster in green rep? Varuish? Me, I lose $20, yes—but—you take it—I keep my word."

"No," said the lady; "I shall not take it. My card." She slipped it back into the case. "I do not care for the davenport." She walked to the door, holding her skirts away from contamination, and turned into the hot, narrow street, a slender figure in a gray gown and a gray hat with pale roses on the wide brim.

Van Holden lit a cigarette in the interval of regarding the shopkeeper with a piercing interest. "Overreached yourself that time, Mr. Montague," he remarked pleasantly.

"Dose Yankees," said Mr. Montague morosely.

"I dare say," said Van Holden. He walked to the front of the shop, the creole at his heels, and a humorous smile twitched the corners of his mouth. "That was a dirty trick of yours. And, by the way, you needn't send up that chair I looked at. I don't care to deal with you in future."

Mr. Montague shrugged his shoulders and lifted up his eyes. Van Holden turned on his heel and walked leisurely down the street, his annoyance lost in a sense of amusement.

"'Dose Yankees,'" he echoed to himself. Then his meditation took the form of manifest approval. "She would have been a picture on that davenport after it was done in green, with her coloring—lack of coloring, rather. Hello Berden! Anything doing? Come over and have lunch at the Cosmopolitan."

"That's where I'm going now," said Berden. "You are just the man I want. I'm taking the girls to lunch today. Molly has a girl visiting her, you know. You'll just round out the party and make us happy foursome. Oh, come on. And see here, Van—what about that deal you made in cotton yesterday?"

They sauntered down the street, deep in discussion, until Berden stopped suddenly. "Jove! I've got to go over to some blamed store and meet those girls. You go on and engage a table; that's a good fellow. Order the lunch, if you want to; you do it better than I do anyhow. I shan't be long."

He darted off, like a distracted water bug in linen clothes and a panama, and Van Holden set forth upon his quest of a table. He found one in a cool corner of the dining room and consumed some time in the ordering of a luncheon that should combine delicacy and a good deal of ice.

When the waiter had left him, he fell to drumming on the table and thinking of the davenport girl, as he called her to himself. "Cool," he mused, "and self possessed—and, Lord, what a face—prettier, perhaps, for a touch of color."

Vaguely he remembered something about "the [illegible] who he[illegible] think that he had made her blush for anger.

"Heigh-ho," he sighed, entirely without reason, and on the moment Berden's voice was in his ears. "Wake up, boy! Look as if you were seeing ghosts, doesn't he, Molly? Miss McCollough, Mr. Van Holden. Did you order lunch, old chap?"

"I did," said Van Holden steadily. "It ought to be here in a moment. Mrs. Berden, sit here; then the light won't be in your eyes."

He changed seats with her deftly and faced across the white tablecloth, accusing gray eyes under a wide brimmed gray hat with pale roses. There was a hint of color in the face.

"Say, Van," cried the irrepressible Berden, "you ought to hear Miss McCollough's story of the way she was 'done' by an antique dealer today—promised to hold a desk or something for her"—

"Don't tell on me," pleaded Miss McCollough nervously, "please, Mr. Berden."

"Oh, the joke's not on you," said Berden consolingly. "And when she went there she found a chap engaged in buying her piece—a very decent looking chap, she says."

"Do make him hush, Molly." Miss McCollough's glass of water answered a despairing and surreptitious push by flowing across the tablecloth on to Berden's knees.

Miss McCollough gasped.

"Oh, that's all right," said Berden, jumping up. He beckoned a waiter and presently resumed his seat and his story.

"Chap was awfully good looking," he rattled on, "well dressed—manner—what was his manner, Molly? Oh, yes, 'the perfection of indifference and the dearest smile.'"

The quick crimson swept up to the gray hat brim, but Berden was merciless.

"She insisted on having the thing; so did he. She spoke of paying $80 for it. He let out that he was getting it for $50. I tell you those dealers are regular sharks. So she didn't take it, and—listen to this, Van Holden—she says she's willing to lose the furniture for the sake of the adventure—says she's found her affinity."

"For pity's sake, Bobbie, hush!" cried his wife. "Can't you see you're worrying Nora? Do eat your lunch."

"Did the man get the desk, Miss McCollough?" inquired Van Holden, with courteous interest.

"Probably so. I left him there," she answered vindictively. "Mr. Berden, is the old Hotel Royal open to visitors?"

"Why don't you go back and see?" asked the man across the table insistently.

"The hotel?" she inquired, surprised.

"No; the antique store"—

"Because I am not sufficiently interested." Van Holden smiled confidently and applied himself to the salad.

With the arrival of the finger bowls the conversation by easy stages, in which Berden's new motor, the last regatta and a projected house party across the lake were discussed, came back to Miss McCollough's adventure.

"So you think the man bought your—desk?" said Van Holden. "If he didn't—I'll wager he will."

Mrs. Berden arose, shaking out her skirts. "If he saw his affinity as she saw her," she laughed, "he may have bought it for her sake."

ALLEGED SWINDLER HELD

Sought to Interest Dead Men's Heirs in England In Bogus Mine.

Philadelphia, Oct. 2.—William Trimble, of California, who was arrested here, charged with using the mails to defraud, was held in $2500 bail by United States Commissioner Craig for a further hearing on October 15, when important witnesses from England will be present. The alleged swindling scheme which resulted in Trimble's arrest is said to have been operated by him for several years. By means of letters addressed to deceased persons in England Trimble is said to have endeavored to interest the heirs in a bogus mine in this country. William Moore, representing the estate of Thomas Hicks, late of London, came to this country and met "Edward A. Sandys," who is believed to be Trimble. Mr. Moore examined samples of ore exhibited by Sandays. Becoming suspicious he notified the postala uthorities and Trimble's arrest resulted from their investigation.

BALTIMORE SHIPPING TIED UP

Steamboat Officers Winning Fight For Increased Pay.

Baltimore, Oct. —Apparently the licensed officers of bay steamboats are winning the fight for increased pay which they are waging against the Baltimore, Chesapeake & Atlantic and the Maryland, Delaware & Virginia Railway companies. The close of the third day finds 21 vessels tied up.

The wharves are so crowded that it has been necessary to remove a number of steamers to temporary locations to make room for incoming boats. The freight situation is becoming acute. It is the season of heavy fertilizer shipments, the prompt delivery of which is of the utmost importance to the farmers. Great quantities of this are awaiting transportation. On the country wharves are large quantities of perishable freight, notably of tomatoes, it being reported that 1200 baskets of these are rotting on a single wharf.

Interrupted

A Kansas farmer was interrupted while writing a letter to his brother. A writer in the Kansas City Star tells the circumstances. The first part of the letter is dated Sunday, and explains that it is too dry to break the prairie, and the writer, with a carpenter, is building a house which is ready for shingling. Meanwhile he is living in a tent. Then after a redating, Tuesday night, the letter says:

I was interrupted Sunday, and this is my first chance to finish the letter. One of those gentle little twisters came along while I was writing and put the place in bad shape.

By some lucky chance the tent was just out of its path, but the house got turned part way round, but landed right side up not far from the foundation.

The chicken-house landed in the draw north of the house, while some light things, like the pans that were outside, went east.

I have the house back on its foundation, and have recovered most of the loose lumber. The house was built to be used for a granary, when we can build a better house, so the framework was double strength. I may be able to get it near enough straight to put in doors and winnows.

It is now too wet to plow.

The Royal Month and the Royal Disease.

Sudden changes of weather are especially trying, and probably to none more so than to the scrofulous and consumptive. The progress of scrofula during a normal October is commongreat. We never think of scrofula—its bunches, cutaneous eruptions, and wasting of the bodily substance—without thinking of the great many sufferers from it have derived from Hood's Sarsaparilla, whose radical and permanent cures of this one disease are enough to make it the most famous medicine in the world. There is probably not a city or town where Hood's Sarsaparilla has not proved its merit in more homes than one, in arresting and completely eradicating scrofula, which is almost as serious and as much to be feared as its near relative,—consumption.

Sunlight Puts Fire Out

"An oven or stove should never be built where the sun will strike it," said an architect. "Sunlight puts a fire out, you know. I had often heard from old women that fires would not burn well if the sun shone on them, but I thought this was a superstition. I thought the fires only seemed to burn less well because the bright light of the sun made their flames look pale and weak. I was wrong though. It is a fact that sunlight on a range or stove will weaken and eventually extinguish the fire. The reason is that the sun's rays hinder combustion, rarefying the air and lessening the bulk of oxygen so necessary to a good, bright

STUART IS UP TO DATE

Would Reduce Local Taxation For Schools and Good Roads.

WANTS MORE MONEY OF STATE

Corporations Would Thus Contribute More to Relieve Rural Burdens From Individual Taxpayers.

Edwin S. Stuart, the Republican nominee for governor, has made a tenstrike by his advocacy of greater state appropriations for public schools and for the improvement of public roads.

He takes this stand with a view to relieving local taxation for these purposes and to lighten the burdens of the individuals as regards taxation and make the corporations contribute more freely in these directions.

It is well known that Pennsylvania collects more in taxes from corporations than any other state in the Union, and this in a measure will account for the fact that, besides meeting all of the ordinary expenses of the state government, Pennsylvania was enabled to build the new state capitol and pay for it without having to levy an additional tax or to borrow a single dollar to do it.

Money for Schools and Roads.

Candidate Stuart, in commenting upon the subject of state taxation a few nights ago, said:

"While the farms and homes of the state have long been relieved from taxation for state purposes, they are still heavily taxed for the support of schools, roads and county expenses.

"It is legitimate that they should be taxed for the proper support of their local affairs, but have we not now reached a period where they may be rapidly relieved of taxation for schools and roads?

"The state has long been tending to the policy of the support of our schools, as we are now appropriating many millions to maintain them, and we have just inaugurated the policy of improving our roads under state direction and by appropriation from the treasury.

"We now have no state debt, and with our matchless progress and development of wealth our revenues must rapidly increase, and we can safely advocate the policy of gradually but speedily making much larger appropriations to our educational system and bringing our chief highways in every community under the same direction, thus practically relieving the farms and homes of the state from all taxation except such as may be necessary for the administration of the local affairs in each county."

Must Protect Farmers' Interests.

Speaking of the new meat laws and kindred subjects of interest to the farmers, Mr. Stuart said:

"The raising of cattle and the employments of the dairy are essential parts of the agricultural operations of the state, and they should be fostered and encouraged in every proper and legitimate way. The progress of agriculture in the state is noteworthy, and in no calling of life are the indications for the future more encouraging.

"It is said that for the amount of brain power and labor expended upon his work, the farmer never gets as good a financial return as the banker, broker or general business man receives. This may be true, but in every great emergency in the history of this country it has been upon the farmers that the government depended, and they have never failed to come to the assistance of the republic when their services were needed. No war could ever be carried to a successful termination if it were not for the commissary department.

"The farmers interests should be safeguarded by both the legislative and the executive branches of the state government."

Logic like this is not strange to Mr Stuart, nor is it a means to gain an end. His interests in the producer the "doer of things," dates back to the time when as mayor of Philadelphia he took a keen interest in those affairs that redounded to the good of the masses for whom he always has had a decided preference. His aim has always been to uplift, and it is pretty certain that the voters of this state will show their appreciation of the man at the polls in November.

That Bardsley Scandal.

Republican nominee for lieutenant governor, Robert S. Murphy, in a recent speech, said, in part:

"We have not been affected by the slander and abuse and the denunciation heaped upon the Republican party. We believe in its honesty, believe in its good faith, and we believe in the sincerity of the rank and file and in the honesty and sincerity of the leaders.

"I say to you that it would be impossible for Mr. Stuart or myself to stand in this presence if I did not feel and if he did not feel the full force and meaning of those words.

"There is an incident in the career of Edwin S. Stuart during his administration of the office of mayor of Philadelphia of which it seems to me but fair to speak. Mr. Stuart had been but one month in that office when, under the authority of the charter governing Philadelphia, he invoked clause in that authority and investigated a department. The result of that investigation startled this commonwealth. You will recall the name of Honest John Bardsley, city treasurer of Philadelphia. The result of the examination of that department was that there was a defalcation of the city funds amounting to half a million dollars. It was no sooner known than under the direction of Mayor Edwin S. Stuart, John Bardsley was arrested He was a Republican officeholder, and up to that time prominent in the highest degree in the respect and esteem and confidence of the people of Philadelphia, and as a result of that investigation he pleaded guilty, and for 11 years he was confined in the eastern penitentiary. I speak of that, my friends, as an evidence of the absolute honesty and sincerity of your candidate upon this ticket."

The profit ofa gold mine depends, not on the amount of rock crushed under the stamps but upon the amount of gold which can be extracted from the rock. In a similar way the value of the food which is eaten does not depend on the quantity which is taken into the stomach but upon the amount of nourishment extracted from it by the organs of nutrition and digestion. When these organs are diseased they fail to extract the nourishment in sufficient quantities to supply the needs of the several organs of the body, and these organs cannot work without nourishment. The result is heart "trouble," liver "trouble," and many another ailment. Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, acting on every organ of the digestive and nutritive system, restores it to health and vigor.

It cures diseases remote from the stomach through the stomach in which they originated. "Golden Medical Discovery' contains neither alcohol nor narcotics.

STUART KNOWS NO BOSS

Republican Nominee For Governor Is a Candidate of the People.

Edwin S. Stuart, Republican candidate for governor, is making friends wherever he goes, says the Kane Republican. In the beginning of his canvas he stated: "I have made no deals or promises, nor has any man or set of men any right to make deals or promises for me. If elected governor I shall conduct my administration according to the oath of office and for the benefit and in the interest of the only master I recognize, the people of Pennsylvania. I state this emphatically now, so that he who has any other idea should oppose my election and not complain afterward that he did not understand my position, and supported me under a misapprehension.' If these are not the words of an independent, honest man, where are we to look? Mr. Stuart was nominated in an open convention and without bossism. Every journal in the state of any prominence, whether Republican or Democratic, has acknowledged the absolute integrity of Mr. Stuart. He means what he says.

Sheep Jumping Hedges.

There was an old rogue of a farmer who went by the name of Tup Harry. This is how he got his nickname: Harry was a small farmer, and he had a neighbor with better means and a better farm than his own. One very dry season Harry had come to the end of his grass for a flock of sheep he possessed. His neighbor had, however, got a fine field of mangel wurzels. Harry looked over the hedge—a hedge furnished with outstanding slates—and greatly longed for those mangels for his sheep, but he did not relish the risk of being caught taking them. So he went in the evening into his field, that was bare of grass, put his head against the hedge, bent his back and called, "Tup, Tup, Tup!" whereupon up ran his old ram, jumped on his back, went on to the hedge and over into the mangel field, and all the flock in Indian file scampered after him over the back of Harry.

Very early in the morning the rogue went into the devastated mangel field, put his head against the hedge, bent his back and called, "Tup, Tup, Tup;" and up came the ram, ran over his back on to the hedge and returned to the barren quarter again, followed in Indian file by all the flock. That was done several times, and no signs appeared anywhere of the hedge being broken through or of a padlocked gate having been opened. At last the farmer who was robbed hid himself one night and saw the whole proceeding. Tup Harry did not try that trick again. —Chambers' Journal.

The Best Flies For Brook Trout.

The careful angler, if he studies nature at all—and he is not a careful angler unless he does—should always note what flies are on the wing. The commonest fly on mountain brooks is the small black gnat, and a little brown winged fly with black body is also quite common. Not till later in the season—the end of June and beginning of July—do the larger and lighter colored flies appear. The case is different on larger and more open rivers. Even early in the season, if the temperature is at all mild and warm, a greater variety are on the wing. I have caught in one day eleven different flies, making careful notes as to size and color, so that my choice of flies has been made to correspond as nearly as possible with them, with a much better result in fish taken. When buying flies get the best. It is cheapest and best in the end. A well tied fly will stand an extraordinary amount of casting and flipping. Fish after fish may be taken with the same fly if ordinary care is used in extracting it from the fish, while a cheap fly is soon unfit for use. There is nothing more exasperating than to find the tackle untwisted or a wing feather broken just when the fish are rising or at dusk, when it is hard to see to put on a fresh fly.—Outing Magazine.

HEARST OPENS FIGHT

Candidate For Governor of New York Answers His Critics.

MADE NO DEAL WITH BOSSES

Declares He Made Promises to No One and Says Newspapers Are Against Him Because He Refused to Reduce Wages and Raise Advertising Rates.

New York, Oct. 9. — William R. Hearst, candidate for governor on the Independence League and Democratic tickets, began his week's campaigning with four addresses in Manhattan. He dwelt at length on the attacks made upon him by the newspapers of New York city, and denounced as absolutely untrue most of the statements affecting himself as a candidate and in his private capacity. In reply to a statement made in one of the New York papers that he would spent $1,000,000 in the campaign, Mr. Hearst said:

"That is an utter and complete falsehood. I guarantee not to contribute more funds to my own campaign, in which I am personally interested, than I did to the campaign of Grover Cleveland and William J. Bryan, in which I was merely interested as a Democrat."

Referring to the statement that he employed Chinese labor on his ranch in California, Mr. Hearst said:

"I have never employed Chinese labor in all my life, and I do not own one foot of ground in Palermo, Cal., either directly or indirectly, nor is Chinese labor employed on any propertythat I own or partly own in California or in any other state of the Union."

Continuing, Mr. Hearst said: "Various New York papers have stated that I have made a compact with the bosses in order to secure my nomination on the Democratic ticket. I had no understanding with any boss before the convention or at the convention or after the convention. I had at the convention 213 votes from up the state and outside of the city in which I lived, and the vote of this city was given to me, or rather part of it was given to me, because the Democratic rank and file of this city had declared for me, and the bosses did not dare defy that declaration.

"I have made no private promises to any individual or to any interest, and any statement that I have or intimation that I have is a lie."

In conclusion, Mr. Hearst said: "I feel sure that I could have been more popular with my fellow newspaper proprietors if, when invited, I had been willing to enter into a trust with them to raise the rates to advertisers and keep down the wages of employes."

FOUGHT OVER WOUNDED MAN

Victim of Fight Nearly Dragged From Ambulance In New York.

New York, Oct. 9.—While a man lay dying in an ambulance in Pell street, in the Chinese quarter, with three bullet wounds in his back, surgeons from two hospitals struggled to secure possession of the wounded man. Several of the dying man's friends took a hand in the affair when the argument was at its height, and when the ambulance started to drive away some one seized the wounded man and almost dragged him out of the ambulance. Policemen who had arrived in the meantime scattered the crowd and directed the removal of the wounded man to a hospital without an instant's delay.

The man who was wounded was known in Chinatown as Gus Marcella. He refused to give the police his address, and declared that he would not give the name of his assailants until satisfied that he is going to die.

What a Letter Will Do.

A proofreader, anent the importance of trifles, read from his notebook these absurd sentences, each made by the omission of a single letter:

"The conflict was dreadful and the enemy was repulsed with great laughter.

"When the president's wife entered the humble sitting room of the miner she was politely offered a hair.

"A man was yesterday arrested on the charge of having eaten a cabman for demanding more than his fare.

"An employee in the service of the government was accused of having stolen a small ox from the mail. The stolen property was found in his vest pocket."

Tamed Poetry.

"I wish to submit a lyric, sir," said the timid young man. "My friends say it's a beauty—réally sings itself."

"Humph!" said the cold hearted editor. "We couldn't use a poem like that. We want one that, once printed, will remain perfectly quiet and not keep our readers awake by singing itself at all times."

A Doctor and a Donkey.

The visit of a real doctor is a grand time for the natives of the small villages in the territory near the Congo Free State, in Africa. Not only do the natives demand medical aid for themselves but they are quick to see that what helps them ought to help their domestic animals. The author of "On the Border of Pigmy Land" gives some amusing experiences with patients."

"One day, while dispensing medicine, an unusual shuffling and pushing seemed to be going on in the doorway. I walked round to find out the cause, and saw a cow being pushed by force toward me. The herdsman explained that it was very ill with indigestion. In order to get rid of this undesirable patient I mixed up some castor-oil with salt and ordered it to be administered in an hour's time.

"I rather regretted this afterward, for very soon another veterinary case was brought in for treatment. This time it was our own faithful donkey, suffering terribly from the plague of flies that generally appear in the dry season. The poor creature had almost lost the power of standing.

"After the donkey boy had applied antiseptic washing and ointment, I tried to fix on bandages, but donkey's legs were evidently never made the right shape for that. I could not get the bandages to stick. A friend suggested trousers. It really sounded suitable, so I set to work on a pair, and when the donkey was put into them he looked most distinguished.

"The people gathered round in numbers to see it, and exclaimed, 'What honor the European gives his animal!' There were several spectators who were not clothed so magnificently, and as I was afraid of giving the impression of extravagant waste, I explained to them the necessity for thus clothing the beast."

Wild West Show Destroyed.

The Wild West show and Walter L. Main's circus, which exhibited here recently has met with an overwhelming disaster. The show is owned by Colonel Cummings, and shortly after its exhibit here it went into winter quarters in Geneva, Ohio. Tuesday morning fire broke out in the main building which resulted in the complete destruction of the entire show. One man who happened to be in the building at the time was unable to get out, and was cremated in sight of his fellow employees. Of the many fine horses and other animals the camels and caged beasts none were saved, with the exception of four elephants and two horses. The magnificent stallion owned by Colonel Cummins and valued at $1000 was lost

The fire is supposed to have originated from the carelessness of some person connected with the show in throwing a lighted cigarette or cigar among some inflammable material. The total loss is estimated to be about $50,000 with practically no insurance.

The Blackbirds Annoy Jersey Shore Sleepers.

Blackbirds are worring the life out of the people of Jersey Shore and all efforts to exterminate them have failed, says the Herald.

As soon as day breaks thousands of the birds start chirping and that means an end to sleep for those residing in that locality. The birds are at the worst where the foliage is the thickest. On upper Broad street they are at their very worst and unless one is a good sleeper it is useless to try conclusions with these noisy alarm clocks. Wilson street people are annoyed by the warbling of the Broad street birds, while upper Main street residents have plenty of their own.

The birds put in their appearance suddenly several weeks ago. It was their first visit to town in such large members and the people of that locality will not be at all sorry to see them depart.

Give Your Boys a Trade.

Franklin says: "He who has a trade has an estate," and never was a more true or a more useful maxim uttered by that man. Many were the rules of conduct laid down by him, and practiced too, through all his long life, which if followed by all men, in all times and ages, would greatly improve the conditions and circumstances of the multitude. The above saying is easy to be understood by all, and applicable to all professions or persuits.

A great day will it be for our country when the youth shall be induced or compelled to adopt some calling, whether mercantile or what is really mechanical. And a greater day will it be when more of them shall choose the latter—to become respectable mechanics, rather than second rate lawyers, or doctors, or divines.

"And why should I get out of the way?" asked pat. "How did I know there were murderers around here?"

"But I called 'fore'" said the player, "and when I say 'fore' that is a signal for you to get out of the way."

"Oh, it is, is it—well, thin, whin I say 'foive' it is a sign you're going to get hit on the nose. 'Foive!'"

Vote for C. T. Fryberger for the legislator. He is clean and honest and will make an able representative.

Henry C. Quigley, one of Bellefonte's brightest attorneys is just the man to represent the 34th Senatorial district and he's going to do it to.

Emery, Black & Company addressed a meeting in the Court house Wednesday night and visited the Fair in the afternoon. While the crowd was large yet there was no great enthusiasm.

Candidate Stuart has reached the point where he not only "stands with the President," but is willing to fall with him.—Philadelphia Record. This is bold intimation of the purpose of the Democrats to down the President with Emery as a shield.

Republicans in Dauphin county should vote for Stuart and every Republican candidate. The fusion cause is without an issue save the sensational charges concerning the Capitol, and Mr. Stuart has declared he will probe that matter to the bottom, He keeps his word.

When Edwin S. Stuart as Mayor of Philadelphia employed expert accountants to go over the records of the city officials and through his action sent John Bardsley to the penitentiary, he was commended by decent men everywhere. It is no wonder that honest citizens are beginning to believe that the assaults upon Mr. Stuart are inspired by improper and selfish motives.

Rudolph Blankenburg's statement that Edwin S. Stuart, the Republican candidate for Governor, is a clean, honest and incorruptible man ought to be sufficient testimony for that element of the Republican party which seeks to elect the Fusion candidate. Admitting Mr. Stuart's special fitness and high character Mr. Blankanburg intimates that he ought not to be elected because he accepted the Republican nomination, and is, as he puts it, in bad company. If Mr. Stuart is in bad company, was not John [illegible] in the same company when [illegible] to the Supreme

BUNGLERS.

Some of the muck-rake newspapers are printing columns of lurid "interviews" with "experts" about "excessive prices" for the furnishings of the new State Capitol.

To read the headlines is to gather the impression that a strong case of extravagance has been made out.

To examine carefully the matter under the headlines is to discover that the alleged "experts" so startlingly "quoted" are nameless.

Candidly, we had given the muck-rake papers credit for more resourcefulness than is manifested in this array of anonymous "interviews."

We had thought, for instance, that they might be able to dig up one or more dealers, who, having failed to land contracts for all or part of the Capitol equipments, would feel sufficently agrieved to permit the use of their names as "experts" in denunciation of the character of the work they were not permitted to do. Most contractors and manufacturers of building materials and furniture are "on the square," and quite willing to accept the results of fair and open competition; but in every transaction of this kind there is usually a yellow bidder or two, who imagines it good business policy to make trouble for the fellow who bids low.

There ought to be "experts" of that character to whom the muck-rake papers could apply for a real "interview" or two, instead of tiring there readers with the long-ago discredited anonymous brand.

We are really surprised at the lack of ingeunity displayed by the muck-rake press.

We can't blame Mr. Berry for working hard for the democratic state ticket, but we'd have a right to jump all over ourselves if we let him fool us, wouldn't we?

Mr Berry, who spouted in the Court House last night, is the same man who a year ago promised to lift the lid if elected. But when he got in he found it unnecessary.

REPUBLICANS WARNED

Must Block a Democratic Scheme te Capture Congress.

ROOSEVELT IS INTERESTED

Lincoln Game in This State Discussed at White House Conference.

[Special Correspondence.]

Philadelphia, Oct. 9.

Chairman Wesley R. Andrews, of the Republican state committee, has sounded a note of warning to Republican committeemen throughout the state owing to the discovery of the details of a plot among Democrats and Lincolnites to defeat Republican candidates for congress.

In fully 11 districts in this state there are at work today active agents of the Democratic National Congressional committee who are well supplied with funds and who have been directed to take advantage of the factional differences among Republicans to bring about the election of Democrats to congress.

The Emery campaign managers are aiding Democrats in their congressional fights in many districts and are making deals by which they are to get Democratic votes for Emery for governor in return for Lincolnite votes for Democratic nominees for congress.

President Roosevelt is greatly concerned over the election of Republicans to congress. He is watching Pennsylvania and New York particularly, owing to the complications in a number of congressional districts arising from the Hearst and Emery independent campaigns for governor.

Senator Penrose was present with Chairman Sherman, of the Republican congressional committee, as guest of President Roosevelt at a dinner at the White House, and they gave particular attention to the doubtful congressional districts in Pennsylvania.

BERRY STARTS TO PROBE

Asks Advice on Legality of Certain Work on Pennsylvania Capitol.

HE HOLDS UP PAYMENTS

Sends Letter to Attorney General For Opinion on Certain Expenditures. Three Philadelphia Editors Invited to Make Examination.

Harrisburg, Pa., Oct. 10. — State Treasurer Berry sent to Attorney General Carson a letter asking for advice as to the legality of certain work done on the new state capitol by the board of public grounds and buildings, composed of Governor Pennypacker, Auditor General Snyder and the state treasurer. The letter in part follows:

"A careful examination of the specifications under which the capitol was built and the items of expenditure made by the board of public grounds and buildings, convinces me that the board has expended approximately $2,500,000 for work that was specified as a part of the building, either in duplication or in addition to the work specified.

"I am, therefore, of the opinion that this expenditure has been illegally made. In the ordinary course of business on warrants duly attested, and in ignorance of the real status of the case, I have paid approximately $142,412 to George F. Payne & Co. for parquetry flooring, and desire your official advice as to whether this payment and others of similar character made by my predecessors are illegal, and if so, what steps, if any, can be taken to recover same. As now advised, I shall decline to make further payments on that work."

Mr. Berry sent with his letter a table of items which were paid for by the board and which, he claims, were specified in the original contract of the capitol commission with Payne & Co.

Mr. Berry also brought this matter to the attention of his colleagues at the meeting of the board. Governor Pennypacker replied that the board had a certificate from Joseph M. Huston, of Philadelphia, architect of the capitol, that nothing had been paid for by the board which the commission had paid for out of the original appropriation of $4,000,000. The board declined to answer certain questions by Mr. Berry as to its right to contract for certain work done by the board on the capitol, on the ground that this was purely a legal question, which should be determined by the attorney general.

Governor Pennypacker and Auditor General Snyder sent the following letter to George W. Ochs, of the Philadelphia Ledger; Charles Emory Smith, of the Philadelphia Press, and Charles H. Heustis, of the Philadelphia Inquirer:

"We observe that the newspapers are interested, and very properly interested, in learning the facts concerning the cost of the capitol, which was so auspiciously dedicated on Thursday last. We therefore request you to come in person to the office of the governor, in the capitol, on Wednesday, October 17, at 2 p. m., when and where there will be shown to you the minutes of the board of public grounds and buildings, the advertisements, schedules, plans, bids, receipted bills and whatever original papers relating to the subject you may wish to examine. The architect will be present to give all needed explanations. This invitation is not at all intended to supersede a detailed investigation which those in authority may hereafter desire to make, but in order that men of responsibility, such as yourselves, may have the opportunity now to see the methods pursued by the board, and to inform the public."

Leper Safe at Pickens, W. Va.

Elkins, W. Va., Oct. 10.—Fears entertained by the governor for the safety of George Raschid, the Syrian leper, aroused by a rather alarming telegram from Dr. J. L. Cunningham, of Pickens, have proved groundless. The sheriff of this county returned from Pickens and reports that he found no sentiment against the leper vindictive enough to end in personal violence. The leper is perfectly safe and will be until his deportation to Syria for which Governor Dawson is arranging. Raschid's nurse was forced to flee from his charge last week after having been fired upon in the night on several occasions. He is now in this city.

Bryan Made Six Speeches.

Wichita, Kan., Oct. 10.—William J. Bryan made six speeches here, being accorded a great reception by members of all parties. He declared that he is more interested in the success of the political ideas which he is advocating than in his own candidacy for office. "The people of this country have for a generation paid too much homage to men with money," he said, "but a change is now taking place." As evidence of this he cited the controversy in a missionary council over the question of accepting a donation from John D. Rockefeller.

Pennsylvania's Debt.

Harrisburg, Pa., Oct. 10. — State Treasurer Berry issued a statement showing that the state debt of Pennsylvania is $3,655,467.02, and that this indebtedness is covered by sinking fund assets.

The Buffalo Flyer Has a Narrow Escape.

That the early morning Buffalo flyer, east bound, was not wrecked at Newberry Saturday morning was due to the rate of speed at which the train was running. A horse wandering about loose had walked onto the small bridge that spans Good's mill race and gotten its legs through between the cross ties. When the flyer struck it the pilot of the engine was broken, its point striking the ties, breaking three of them in two Apparently a terrible disaster was miraculously avoided.

So terribly mutilated was the animal after the train had struck it that it was almost impossible to tell its color. Bits of flesh, blood and bones were strewn from the small bridge to a point where the train was stopped a short distance above Rose street. Its body was literally cut into shreds. The horse belonged to Dr. Barkins of Linden and it had broken loose and wandered down the railroad. The train was running at the rate of about 55 miles an hour and, having about 10 cars, the momentum was terrific.

When the pilot of the engine ploughed into the helpless animal the impact was sufficient to crush the pilot back under the boiler. The point caught on the ties and tore its way through three of them, splintering the heavy timbers and tearing them from their places. The great speed of the train and the enormous weight and style of the engine probably prevented a terrible wreck. The locomotive was one of the large Atlantic type with trailer wheels and was difficult to derail under.

Jilted Girl Will Not Settle $25,000 Suit

Attorneys for Miss Lizzie Gummo, who is suing ex-Councilman Edgar G. Toner of Tyrone, for $25,000 damages in breach of promise, has refused to accept a compromise which has been offered by the attorneys for Toner.

Miss Gummo, who is a seamstress, and lives near Tyrone, was in Altoona Wednesday, and emphasized that she would not accept any hearing and a suit possibly next month was put under way.

It promises to be the most sensational suit ever heard in Blair county, as both are well known. Miss Gummo in her bill alleges that she was courted for twelve years by Toner, and was then jilted for a Philadelphia girl.

Toner, who was formerly a member of council at Tyrone, and once ran for burgess, losing by only one vote, has not yet filed his reply to the suit, but will be forced to do so now that there seems no chance of compromising.

Miss Gummo alleges that Toner was a lover of the old style; that he came to see her at least every Sunday and often during the week, and that every time he came he would lead her into the parlor, take her in his arms and kiss her, calling her his "honey love" and his "darling." She speaks of the many and beautiful presents given to her by her lover.

Saved From a Trial by Wife's Elopement.

Because John Williams had eloped with his wife wife, William Johnson, of Pottstown, was not prosecuted in court in Norristow on the charge of assult and battery.

Several weeks ago Johnson thrashed Williams because he paid too much attention to Mrs. Johnson. Then Williams had Johnson arrested. He could not furnish bail and was sent to jail to await trial.

When Johnson's case was called in court Wednesday, it was stated that during his imprisonment Mrs. Johnson and Williams had left town together. The court promptly discharged Johnson.

Juniors Feasted at the Park Hotel.

The annual banquet of the Junior class of State College, held at the Park hotel, Williamsport, Friday night, was certainly one of those joyous occasions such as only hale college boys will met know how to have, and where some splendid toasts, witty remarks, college cheers and last, but not least, original college songs were heard.

The banquet was an elaborate affair and seventy-five or more plates were laid and was all that could be expected in the way of an elegant and delicious repast, as will be seen from the menu as served: Blue points, consomme, celery, pickles, olives, baked white fish, potato chips, roast young chicken (stuffed), green peas, candied sweet potatoes, lobster salad, Junior punch, ice cream, assorted cake, coffee, cigars.

Straightening Moshannon Creek.

An effort is being made to induce the state highway department to straighten the Moshannon creek northwest of Philipsburg which will help protect the new state road leading to Troys, prevent so much back water in the Beaver Meadows and give Philipsburg better drainage. Sim Batcheler is pushing this matter to the very best of his ability, and should have the entire neighborhood back of him. The work could be done, it is thought, at a cost of about $5000.00, which is a small consideration for the gracious benefits to be derived. The chief of the state engineering corps is expected here in a day or two to look into the matter.—Philipsburg Journal.

Wedding Day Begins With Bridal Choruses

The following account of the marriage of Prof. T. J. Smull, formerly of Mackeyville, is clipped from the Ada, O., University Herald:

Tourday, October 4 at 12 o'clock at the home of the bride's mother, Mrs. Laura Kemp, occurred the ceremony that united in nuptial bonds toe lives of Thomas J. Smull and Miss Cora Anita Kemp.

The day's festivities were inaugurated early in the morning when the Clefs, a musical organization of which the bride is a member, gathered beneath the bride's window and sang beautifully sentimental choruses as a morning serenade.

The marriage was performed in the presence of some 35 guests. At the appointed hour Miss Orchie Snyder of Dayton sang with emotion "A Song of Thanksgiving." Then as Miss Florence Schidewolf, pianist, began to unfold the passionate strains of Lohengrin's wedding march the bridal party appeared. The bride and groom were attended by Mrs. Alice Dean Oakes and Prof. Cliffe Deming, preceded by Miss Vivian Tobias a flower girl.

The bride was charmingly arrayed in a gown of white Persian lawn, and carried bride's roses. The groom was attired in black. Beneath a beautifully decorated arch of smilax and carnations, with panels for the attendants the party took their position, and here, using the impressive ring service, the Rev. Z. B. Campbell, D. D., of Oxford, O., assisted by the Rev. J. F. Elder, D. D. performed the ceremony and pronounced them man and wife.

When the storm of congratulations had subsided the happy assembly repaired to the spacious dining room of Mr. Tobias' residence where a delicious four-course lunch was served. Here the color scheme was pink and white and very effectively carried out.

An automobile kept playing up and down the street, waiting for a guest at the wedding and as this wedding attire, hatless and goodbyeless jumped in also and were off in an instant, but not without a generous shower of rice. Their traveling costume they had arranged to find on the way. They went to Lafayette and from there took No. 39 east to points in Pennsylvania among the professor's friend

A magnificent array of gifts were presented as a mementos of esteem and remembrance.

Girl, Escaping Noose, to Wed Prison Chum.

A romance, which had its beginning in prison during the incarceration of Miss Emma Stephany at Pottsville recently acquitted of the murder of James W. Frizzle, is about to culminate in her wedding with William Quinton of Rockville now serving a term for a trivial offense.

Quinton has always believed in Miss Stephany's innocence of the crime with which she was charged. During the ast days of her incarceration he was very attentive, and was punished for trying to place food and little luxuries in her hands. They are to be married as soon as Quinton is discharged from prison.

Miss Stephany, during her prison life, discovered that Quinton was a former school chum, both being natives of the same town. The attachment was discovered by the officials of the prison through letters which have been sent to Quinton by the girl since her release. Some of these missives are carried to Quinton by the girl's mother, who approves of the match.

The Local Paper.

The local paper should be found in every home. No children should grow up ignorant who can be taught to appreciate the home paper. It is said to be the stepping stone of intelligence in all those matters not to be found in books. Give your children a foreign paper which contains not a word about any persons, place or thing, which they saw or perhaps ever heard of, and how could you expect them to be interested But let them have the home paper and read of people of whom they meet and of places of which they are familiar with, and soon an interest is awakened which increases with every arrival of the local paper. Thus a habit of reading is formed and those children will read the papers all their lives and become intelligent men and women, a credit to their ancestors, strong in the knowledge of the world as it is today.

"I wish to congratulate you on your medicine, Peruna. I have been a sufferer with catarrh of the stomach for over two years, but since I have commenced to take your remedy I have been steadily improving until now I can safely say I feel no more of my old trouble, and as a matter of course, I will always have a good word for Peruna.

Moshannon.

Mrs. Maines Bowes, of Cherry Tree, visited a few days in our town on her way to Jersey Shore, where she will visit relatives and friends.

Mr. Yeager and Mr. Sexton, two prominent business men of Bellefonte transacted business here this week.

T. M. Crownover has returned from a two weeks trip to Huntingdon county, where he has gone to visit his father who is seriously ill.

Milford Yandes, came home recently, having spent the summer in some other locality.

Wesley Bickett, employed as telegraph operator, at Panther, on the N. Y. C. R. R. Sundayed at his home here.

This week we were greatly surprised as well as spellbound as we looked up from our work a few minutes to gaze upon an unusual procession, which marched through town, consisting principally of children and youths whose ages ranged from six to eighteen years. After a careful survey of this strange spectacle and realizing it was not a second Coxy's Army or a band from Cuba, we came to the conclusion that it was the boro schools, under the direction of the teachers Mr. Snyder and Miss Lucas, going to the autumn woods on a chestnut hunt. We were informed that they had a very delightful excursion and secured enough of the "goodies" to keep them "nibbling" all winter during school hours.

Mr. Levi Quick, Sr., the oldest man of our community, died on Sunday. His death was not a great surprise as the infirmities of old age and a life of unceasing toil and placed him in a condition where it was merely a matter of time when he would be called to rest. The deceased was 80 years old and an honest industrious citizen of this community for a number of years.

The latest social event which we have the pleasure to make note of was held at the home of J. B. Martin, on Oct. 4th, by the older members of the social circle, by what is generally known among these people as a "quiltin." A very enjoyable day was put in and no one regretted having been a participant in this great gathering. Some of the neighbors, who were not present received slight scratches but none were seriously injured. Those present at this "quiltin," were: Mrs. J. W. Howard, Mrs. John McGowo, Mrs. Wm. Lomison, Mrs. John Leeder, Mrs. Brady Beightol, Mrs. Robt. Reiter, Mrs. Carson, Mrs. Cyrus Schnars, Mrs. C. G. Weaver, Mrs. Wm. Lucas, Mrs. J. T. Lucas, Mrs. T. M. Crownover, Mrs. Milford Martin, Minnie Beightol, Katie Leeder and myself.

Capt. C. T. Fryberger, is the man for the Assembly. He is a good, honest, reliable citizen of good reputation, served his country faithfully during the rebellion and is deserving of the office which he seek.

George W. Skeen of Westchester had sale of a carload of young cattle last Saturday. The sale was largely attended but few were sold. We have been informed that some persons tried to put up a job on him which was not very commendable, consequently not many were sold. If the report is true it was a mean contemptible job.

12 Party Squares on Ballot for Governor.

Voters of Pennsylvania will, if the courts do not rule otherwise, have 12 party squares on the official ballot from which to make their choice for Governor and other State officials at the November election.

Every new party that has taken out nomination papers and obtained the requisite number of signatures in entitled to a place on the ballot for its candidates.

Twelve parties having candidates for the four state offices to be filled this year are, Republican, Democratic, Prohipition, Lincoln, Socialist, Labor, Referendum, Jefferson, Citizens' City, Union Labor and Commonwealth.

Names of several candidates will appear on the ballot under more than one party title. In some counties there will be as many as fourteen squares on the ticket.

Among the names pre empted are Mitchell, Pennsylvania Blacksmith, Roosevelt, Square Deal, Nomination Paper party, Senatorial, Judicial Reform, Butler Republican and Federation.

It will be some time before the official ballots will be certified from the State Department, as there are so many contests on before the Dauphin County Court that certifies them now is impossible.

MET DEATH IN BURNING HOME

Aged Man and Two Small Children Suffocated.

Steubenville, O., Oct. 9.—His home destroyed by flames and the dead bodies of his aged father and two small children was the sight that met the eyes of Charles Zende, a farmer, on McIntyre creek, when he returned to his home from a short trip. The cause of the fire is a mystery, the blaze breaking out during the absence of Mr. Zende.

The dead are: Christian Zende, 75 years old; Henry Zende, aged 5 years, and Mary Zende, aged 4 years.

All were found near a door leading out of the house, and they had evidently been suffocated by the smoke. The aged man had apparently made a heroic effort to save the lives of his two grandchildren before he was overcome by the smoke. When the fire was well under way it was noticed by neighbors, but too late to reach the house intime to save the lives of the inmates.

HEARING IN WILL CONTEST

Lawyer Charged With Tampering With Signature.

Scranton, Pa., Oct. 9. — The first hearing in the J. L. Crawford will contest opexed before Judge Sando, C. F. Riedel and Albert M. Bahman, the witnesses to the Schooley will, and George B. Schooley being sworn. Schooley caused somewhat of a sensation by charging his former attorney, Charles Hawley, who withdrew from the case Saturday, with changing the signature on the will by inking it over on certain letters. He admitted buying Chicago Subway stock to find out how much Mr. Crawford held, this being previous to the making of the alleged will. His failure to file the will at the same time as the one probated was due to his promise to Mr. Crawford to secure first from Mrs. Crawford the three notes for $11,000 signed by him which she held. In this he was unsuccessful, and he then offered the alleged will to prevent the heirs under the other will suing him on the notes.

SIX SAVED FROM SEA

Picked Up After Clinging 14 Hours to Vessel's Side.

New Haven, Oct. 9.—After clinging to the side of the capsized British schooner Oceanic for 14 hours, Captain Lohems and a crew of five men were rescued by the auxiliary yacht Aloha, belonging to Arthur C. James, of New York, and brought to this port. The Oceanic, which was overturned in the blow of Sunday, was towed here by the yacht, and she now lies on her beam ends in the lower harbor. The capsized schooner was bound from Louisburg to New York with a load of spruce, and while 12 miles west of the Sperry Light capsized in a squall. The crew was able to scramble on the side of the vessel after they had jumped in the water, and clung there until they were taken aboard the Aloha, little the worse for their experience.

An Object Lesson.

Pastor J. Allison Platts being absent attending a meeting of Presbytery, Prof. James R. Hughes was invited to conduct the Presbyterian mid-week prayer meeting of the present week. He gave us an object lesson, one of the most significant and instructive I have ever seen. It was an illustration of the oft-repeated truth of the gospel that Christ is "The Light of the World," that members of the church are called of Christ to be "lights in the world" to represent Him as the one only "true light." On the stand in front of the desk were placed nine lighted candles. Seven were white, typical of the Holy Church. In the centre one rising above the rest, a type of Christ who is "Head over all things to the church."

In close proximity were two smaller candles. One of these was blue, by its color I suppose representing a Presbyterian church member. Near the close of the professor's interesting talk, the light of the little blue candle went out, burning down to its socket setting fire to the paper covering the stand. What seemed a little strange our leader did not see the certain danger to which the church candles were exposed. One of the elders sitting near him made a slight move to stay the blaze and some of the women sitting just behind the elder nudged him, but still he kept his seat.

Finally the professor extinguished the flame and there was only darkness where the little blue candle had been placed. The Saviour says, "If the light that is in thee be darkness, how great is that darkness." Standing nearest the audience was a small red candle by its color signalizing to church members their danger lest like the foolish virgins they say to the wise, "give us of your oil, for our lamps are gone out." It is only when "Christ is in us the hope of glory," that we can "let our light so shine that others seeing our good works will glorify our Father who is in Heaven."

One who was present.

"Quincy Adams Sawyer" Coming.

There is scarcely anyone in this broad land who has not by this time either heard of or read that "best New England story ever written,—"Quincy Adams Sawyer" and observed the man driving down a country road to Mason's Corner in a one-horse chaise. These same people are familiar with the words which have appeared everywhere beneath that picture, whether in the big posters on the bill-boards, or in the book stores, or in the columns of the newspapers. The village gossips wondered who he was, what he was, what he came for, and how long he intended to stay." This announcement is to state that the "Quincy Adam Sawyer" of book fame, has now become the "Quincy Adams Sawyer" of play fame as well. That at least explains who he is and what he is. It is self-evident that what he comes for is to entertain the theatre goers who will doubtless pack the opera house Bellefonte Pa, to see the dramatization of a novel that has reached the phenomenal sale of 200,000 in its first year. As to the length of the stay, it is limited to one performance as follows, Tuesday Dec. 18th 1906.

Special pains have been taken in this dramatization to preserve that simple rural charm which has been so much admired by book lovers and it is promised that play goers will find "Quincy Adams Sawyer" a rattling good homespun play of life in a Massachusetts village—bright, fresh and breezy, and filled with honest love. It presents unique phases of Yankee life, and has the real country atmosphere. The play is promised as one great big laugh from beginning to end, with the sweetest love story ever told. It is presented in four acts and five scenes, all specially built and painted for this production, and it will be the same cast as in the recent New York run at the Academy of Music in New York City. This company is a carefully selected one of well known players, the principal characters from the book who appear in the play.

Gored to Death on Wedding Day.

Mrs. Frederick Cowan, 17 years of age, and her husband, were gored to death by an angry bull in a pasture near Martinsburg, W. Va., Thursday. Cowan eloped with his young bride and they had just left the home of the preacher who had married them and were hurrying across an open pasture to the railway station in order to catch a train, when the bull, irritated by a flaming red dress which the young woman wore, charged down upon them.

The young husband fought desperately with the infuriated animal, but was gored in the side and finally thrown to the ground and trampled to death.

The bull then turned his attention to the girl, who paralyzed by fear, had been unable to escape from the spot. Taking the young woman upon his bloody horns, he tossed her across a barbed wire fence, injuring her so that she died within a few hours. The young peoples marriage was strongly opposed by the parents of the bride.

BRYAN MEN FOR CONGRESS

Roosevelt Republicans Are Targets In His Gubernatorial Campaign.

HOW DEMOCRATS ARE PROFITING

They Hope to Fulfill Pledge to Nebraska Leader to Gain Congressmen In Pennsylvania.

When William J. Bryan landed in New York he was given a great reception. Pennsylvania Democrats were represented on the occasion by the very same Democratic leaders who had just made Lewis Emery their nominee for governor. These backers and supporters of Emery presented Mr. Bryan with a solid silver shield, upon which were inscribed the resolutions of the Democratic Emery convention.

"We congratulate the country upon the fact," so the resolutions inscribed on silver read, "that the only prominence which the present Republican national administration has attained has been achieved by feeble and pretended application of principles enunciated by the Hon. William Jennings Bryan, the Great Democratic Commoner, who is now regarded as the certain successor of Theodore Roosevelt to the Presidency."

John M. Garman, former chairman of the Democratic state committee, had prepared a careful speech of presentation. "Pennsylvania Democrats have joined in an unselfish patriotic fusion with Independent Republicans," the speech ran. And he added:

"We are not unmindful of the importance of the election of Democrats to congress, and there is every reason to believe that we shall gain from six to eight representatives in the lower house who will co-operate with their fellow Democrats of other states to administer the policies which you have so consistently and ably championed."

Emery Helping Bryanites.

That was no idle boast that Garman made. There are several districts so close that, with even a partial fusion between the Democrats and the so-called Lincolnites (an organization owned body by Emery) eight or ten Democratic representatives may easily be sent to Washington to support the principles of Bryan and Hearst and oppose the policies of President Roosevelt.

Mr. Emery is doing his level best to elect those Bryan-Hearst Democrats to congress.

We present a few facts:

In his speech at Punxsutawney, on the night of September 22, he said: "I would sooner have a decent Democrat down there than a stinking, rotten Republican who is against the president of the United States."

He went on to declare that but for the aid of the Democrats the railroad rate bill would never have been passed.

But it so happens that with the single exception of Mr. Sibley, who is not a candidate for re-election, there was not one Republican vote in the Pennsylvania delegation against the president—not one. And yet Mr. Emery is engaged in a conspiracy with his Democratic friends to try to defeat several of these supporters of Roosevelt and send Bryanites and Hearstites in their places.

A Glance Over the District.

In the district composed of Erie and Crawford counties there is no open fusion between the Democrats and Lincolnites, but the Democrats have nominated A. J. Palm for congress against Arthur L. Bates, Republican and present member. Palm was one of the principal speakers with Emery when the latter opened his campaign at Erie on the night of Monday, September 10. The Emery men there make no secret of their intention to support the Bryanites.

In the district comprising Washington, Beaver and Lawrence counties the Emery Lincolnites and the Democrats have fused and nominated Robert K. Aiken, a lawyer of New Castle, Lawrence county, against Earnest F. Acheson, Republican and present member, and a man of independent action always. Aiken accompanied Emery on his tour of the district and spoke from the same platform with him at Beaver Falls on September 11, and at Washington, Pa., on September 15.

In the Montgomery-Bucks district Walter F. Leedom, of Bristol, has been selected as the candidate of the Emery Lincolnites and Emery Democrats against Irving P. Wanger, Republican and present member, and will speak with Emery from the same platform when the candidate for governor of the Bryanite party gets into that locality.

In the district composed of Cumberland, Dauphin and Lebanon counties the Emery Lincolnites have indorsed John Lindner, of Carlisle, the Democratic candidate against Marlin E. Olmstead, Republican and present member, but to the credit of the Cumberland county Lincoln conferees the latter have refused to enter into the deal. Cumberland county presents one bright spot at least.

In the Lycoming-Tioga-Clinton district the Lincolnites have nominated a straight-out candidate against Elias Deemer, Republican and present member. In this district the Lincolnites, it is seen, are not willing to go the full length of opposing a Republican who has served long and well, but are occupying the position of Assistant Democrats.

Somerset, Fayette and Green counties compose a congressional district of which Allen F. Cooper is the Republican representative. The Lincolnites have united with the Democrats in presenting E. O. Kooser, Byanite. On the night of September 28 Kooser and Emery spoke to the same audience, and Kooser arraigned the Republican party in the most scathing language—the party of President Roosevelt. Emery is committed to Kooser's candidacy.

In all of these districts where present members are being opposed by Lincolnite or fusion candidates the members so opposed have been staunch supporters of Roosevelt and his policies. All of them voted for the rate bill. Bates is secretary of the Pennsylvania Republican delegation in Congress. Olmstead is one of Speaker Cannon's right-hand men, and frequently presides over the house when in committee of the whole. Acheson is one of the strongest men in the delegation. Wanger is able and faithful in the performance of his duties.

Side Show in "Shoe-String" District.

A vigorous attempt was made by the Emeryites and Democrats to knock out Representative Butler in the Chester-Delaware district, and the most annoying, contemptible and underhand methods were employed in the effort to produce such a result, but it failed.

In the "shoe-string" district, made up of Franklin, Fulton, Huntingdon, Juniata, Mifflin, Perry, Snyder and Union counties, Benjamin F. Focht has been nominated by the Republicans. The Lincolnites have not dared to indorse the Democratic candidate, William Alexander, out right, but have put up a side-show candidate in the person of Edward Hummel. There is not the slightest show for the election of Hummel, but so long as the Emery people can aid the Bryan candidate they are content.

In Luzerne county the Lincolnites have put up Coray in the hope of smashing the Republican lines and sending a Democrat to Congress.

The 27th district comprises Armstrong, Clarion, Indiana and Jefferson counties, and W. O. Smith has represented it. He is not the candidate this time, and in his place is Major Joseph G. Beale, a veteran of the civil war. Emery is committed to the Democratic candidate. Indeed, it was in this district that Emery, speaking at Punxsutawney on the night of September 22, already referred to, made his declaration that he would "sooner have a decent Democrat down there (Washington) than a stinking, rotten Republican."

And this in a district where a veteran whose name and character carry weight throughout all of the counties composing it, Major Beale, is the Republican candidate!

These are facts that no one can get away from. They show conclusively that when the Pennsylvania Democrats promised Bryan to send six or eight extra Democrats to Congress they were not talking vainly. They had had their understanding with their gubernatorial candidate Emery, and Emery is standing gallantly by the agreement to smash the Republican party at every possible point, even to the extent of advocating Bryan-Hearst candidates for congress.—Philadelphia Inquirer.

His Influence.

"Do you think a man's influence lasts after he is gone?" asked the philosopher.

"Well, I should say!" cried the young woman. "My husband tied my property up so that I can't ever marry again!"—Detroit Free Press.

Intimations.

No member of the British parliament is permitted to say bluntly and directly that another is drunk, but he may hint at the fact in periphrase, as when Mr. Gladstone, replying to an unconventional speech of Disraeli's, remarked, "The right honorable gentleman has evidently had access to sources of inspiration that are not open to me." A violent scene was caused in the parliament of Victoria, Australia, by a labor member saying of a legal colleague, "The honorable and learned gentleman was once called to the bar, and he has since gone frequently without being called." The angry barrister retorted, "You tea drinking skunk!" Eventually both withdrew and apologized.

Curiosity Aroused.

"Papa, what makes the cheese smell so?"

"The process by which it was cured, I presume."

After some moments of profound cogitation, "Papa, what would it smell like if it hadn't been cured?"

A Chance For Somebody.

"Very strange, isn't it, about the story of Adam and Eve?"

"How?"

"Why, as far as I know, it hasn't been worked up into a historical novel."—Watson's Magazine.

Injuries of Life.

The injuries of life if rightly improved will be to us as the strokes of the statuary on his marble, forming us to a more beautiful shape and making us fitter to adorn the heavenly temple.—Cotton Mather.

CASTLE KEEPS AT IT

Nightly Demands Answers to Charges Emery Keeps Dodging.

MINISTERS GO TO HIS MEETINGS

Clergymen Want to Know More About Character of Man Who Links the Church With the Brewery.

Like a ferocious bull dog on the trail of a fleeing burglar, Homer L. Castle "keeps everlastingly at it" in his pursuit of Lewis Emery, Jr., his Democratic rival for the governorship.

There is no such thing as "quitting" in Castle's make-up, and he certainly has kept Emery on the run from the very outset of the campaign.

Castle has been drawing immense crowds at many of his meetings.

He must be given credit for the fearlessness and persistence with which he is conducting his campaign. He is quite as severe upon the Republicans as he is upon the Democrats and the Lincolnites in his general criticisms, but while he has attacked the Republican party management, he has not found an excuse to say a single word of condemnation of Edwin S. Stuart, the Republican nominee for governor.

With Emery it has been different.

At almost every meeting he has something new to present, some new reason, some new argument why Emery should not be elected to the governorship. Wherever he goes he charges that Emery is not a fit man to be the chief executive of Pennsylvania.

He attacks him personally, as well as on account of his official and business record.

A significant feature of the Castle campaign is the keen interest that is being manifested in his canvass by clergymen of every denomination.

Ministers Listen to Castle.

Many ministers attend his meetings. This in a measure may be accounted for by the fact that Mr. Castle and Dr. Swallow were responsible for the criticisms of Emery which brought forth from Emery his now famous letter in which he placed the brewery upon the same plane with the church, the hospital and the school.

In speaking at one of his recent gatherings on the subject of the attendance of clergymen at his meetings, Mr. Castle said:

"As soon as it began to be noted in the papers that ministers were not only attending our meeting, but were taking active part and interest and were appearing upon the platform with us, then the Emery people undertook to discount it by having their newspapers chronicle the fact that the ministers were attending their meetings.

"The newspapers stayed at least near enough to the truth so that they did not say that the ministers were taking any part or were approving of the Emery campaign, but simply that they were in attendance.

"There is perhaps no good reason why a preacher might not go to a barroom, a dance hall or an Emery meeting, simply to see what is going on and be able in each case to point out to his people the disastrous results of visiting or consorting with any one of the three. But the whole trend of the church in its declarations of hostility to the liquor traffic and to all affiliations with the brewery business are so clear and unmistakable that it can hardly be a thinkable proposition that the ministry of this state should become in any sense a partisan of Lewis Emery or those who attach themselves to him."

What Castle Wants to Know.

At every meeting Mr. Castle repeats his queries addressed to Mr. Emery, all of which that gentleman has up to date failed to answer.

He wants to know from Mr. Emery if it is not true that his immense fortune was made largely from "sellin out" to the Standard Oil company and then re-establishing himself as a competitor in the oil business, only to again make a compact to start a new golden stream into his personal treasury.

He wants to know if it is not true that at this very time Mr. Emery has got a veritable "gold mine" in the Pure Oil company, which is ostensibly a competitor of the Standard, but which, in fact, has a very satisfactory and harmonious business arrangement by which both the Standard and the Pure Oil companies fix prices which make the oil consumers "easy marks" for both of them.

He wants to know if it is not true that there are at least two representatives of the Standard Oil interests on the board of directors of Emery's Pure Oil company.

He wants to know what Israel W Durham, James P. McNichol and John M. Mack, the Philadelphia politicians, paid for their stock in the Pure Oil company, and what political influence, if any, they were to throw to the advantage of the Pure Oil company, or did they arrange a deal with the Standard?

He wants to know why Mr. Emery goes about denouncing corporations for getting freight rebates from railroads when he admitted, under oath, before the interstate commerce commission, that his company had received such rebates.

He wants to know why Mr. Emery devotes so much attention to denouncing the Standard Oil company's methods when it is charged that the Emery oil company falsified the tests of its oil, and the inspector's stamps, that oil that stood the test of only 110 was stamped as tested 150; that this was fraudulently done; that Mr. Emery's company reaped the largely increased profits of this fraud; that Mr. Emery is or was practically the Emery Oil company.

He wants to know if Mr. Emery still places the church, the schools and the hospitals upon the same plane with the brewery.

Over-Work Weakens Your Kidneys.

Unhealthy Kidneys Make Impure Blood.

All the blood in your body passes through your kidneys once every three minutes.

The kidneys are your blood purifiers, they filter out the waste or impurities in the blood.

If they are sick or out of order, they fail to do their work.

Pains, aches and rheumatism come from excess of uric acid in the blood, due to neglected kidney trouble.

Kidney trouble causes quick or unsteady heart beats, and makes one feel as though they had heart trouble, because the heart is over-working in pumping thick, kidney-poisoned blood through veins and arteries.

It used to be considered that only urinary troubles were to be traced to the kidneys, but now modern science proves that nearly all constitutional diseases have their beginning in kidney trouble.

If you are sick you can make no mistake by first doctoring your kidneys. The mild and the extraordinary effect of Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, the great kidney remedy is soon realized. It stands the highest for its wonderful cures of the most distressing cases and is sold on its merits by all druggists in fifty-cent and one-dollar sizes. You may have a sample bottle by mail free, also pamphlet telling you how to find out if you have kidney or bladder trouble. Mention this paper when writing Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y.

IN LIBBY PRISON.

A New Story of Bishop McCabe, Once a Captive Chaplain.

An interesting incident of life in Libby prison was recalled by Colonel C. E. Bradshaw addressing a meeting of representatives of the patriotic organizations of Washington. The name of Bishop McCabe was mentioned.

"I recall one of the darkest, stormiest, rainiest nights at old Libby," said Colonel Bradshaw. "The Union prisoners were huddled together on one of the lower floors, and the rain was coming in on them in a perfect deluge. Among the captives in blue was Bishop McCabe, then a chaplain. In his excess of good nature he saw the humorous side of even such a situation as I have described. While our boys, hungry and cold, were trying to keep warm and dry a voice was raised above the howling of the tempest outside and could be heard in all parts of the prison:

"'Hands on your pocketbooks!'

"The voice was that of Chaplain McCabe, who knew full well that there was not a single dollar in all that great crowd of shivering Yankee soldiers. The sally caused an outburst of laughter notwithstanding the uncomfortableness of the situation."—Washington Star.

The Admiral Relented.

"While Admiral Porter was in command of the Mississippi squadron and at a time when they were most actively engaged," said Captain Lloyd G. Harris of St. Louis, "a young ensign made his appearance on the flagship and astounded the admiral by asking him for a leave of absence. 'Why, sir,' roared Porter, 'don't you understand that no officer can leave at this time, no matter who he is or what his excuse?'

"'But, admiral, it is a case of life and death. I must go.'

"'But you can't go. It is impossible.'

"'Please hear me, Admiral Porter. When I entered the service I was engaged to as pretty a girl as there is in northern Illinois. I have just got word that one of those miserable home guards has been courting her, and my friend says it looks as though if I don't come back pretty soon I will lose her. Now, admiral, I think, under the circumstances, you might let me go for a week at least.'

"Porter's heart melted. The ensign got leave, went home and married the girl in triumph."—Chicago Times-Herald.

HIDDEN DANGER.

Nature Gives Timely Warnings That No Bellefonte Citizen Can Afford to Ignore.

Danger Signal No. 1 comes from the kidney secretions. They will warn you when the kidneys are sick Well kidneys excrete a clear, amber fluid. Sick kidneys send out a thin, pale and foamy or a thick, red, ill-smelling urine, full of ediment and irregular of passage.

Danger Signal No. 2 comes from the back. Back pains, dull and heavy, or sharp and acute, tell you of sick kidneys and warn you of the coming of dropsy, diabetes and Bright's disease. Doan's Kidney Pills cures sick kidneys and cure them permanently. Here's Bellefonte proof.

Mrs. Nancy Davis, of 246 East Logan Street, says: "I suffered a bad fall some years ago when living in Rochester. I thought at first that I had broken my back. I was unable to get up without assistance and from that time I suffered for years with a weak back and excruciating pains through the loins and through the small of my back. Sometimes I was completely prostrated and helpless. Doctors and medicines failed to help me and the pain continued until I got Doan's Kidney Pills. I took only a few doses before I began to feel better and when I had continued using them for a while I was thoroughly cured. My back regained its strength and the pain left me. I have had no return of the trouble since."

DR. BROUWER ON TRIAL

Toms River, N. J., Physician Faces Charge of Wife Murder.

TOOK A DAY TO SECURE JURY

Prosecutor Confident Accused Will Be Convicted—Brouwer Claims He is the Victim of a Terrible Wrong, and Says He Will Be Acquitted.

Toms River, N. J., Oct. 9.—A jury was selected for the trial of Dr. Frank Brouwer for the murder of his wife. The prominence of Dr. Brouwer, who is one of the best-known physicians in the county, and the wide publicity given to the case made it difficult to find men acceptable to both sides, and the work of selection occupied all day.

The jury is as follows: S. Judson Ridgeway, grocer, of Little Egg Harbor, foreman; John M. Cobb, bayman, of Stafford; Calvin D. Parker, of Little Egg Harbor; Henry Seaman, bayman, of Englaswood; Thomas B. Mick, bayman, of Toms River; Walter Bell, of Plumstead; Cornelius Matthews, of Jackson township; Harry W. Errickson, of Plumstead; George A. Leek, of Little Egg Harbor; Samuel G. Crammer, of Union township; Thomas Hartshorne, of Plumstead; Joel H. Sprague, of Long Branch.

It is believed the defense will be ptomaine poisoning, as it has the same symptoms as arsenical poisoning.

"He is guilty," said the prosecutor. "We will prove it. We know the fight to save him will be a hard one. But facts are facts. Dr. Brouwer poisoned his wife."

The murder charge has hung over Dr. Brouwer practically ever since his wife died a year ago, it is alleged from the effects of arsenic and ground glass, supposed to have been administered by the physician himself.

Mrs. Brouwer died in September, 1905. Her sister, Elizabeth Hyer, began the agitation which caused her body to be exhumed several weeks later. A Philadelphia expert who made an analysis reported that he found arsenic in her stomach.

To rid himself of his wife, it is charged that Dr. Brouwer poisoned her food, and that as she lay for 10 days in agony he came to her with medicines that she took in faith that he meant to cure her, but that each of these doses contained arsenic and ground glass, and that in this way he killed her. Trained nurses were around her, and he called in physicians from time to time, but the prosecution alleges that he fooled them all, using the physicians as tools, making them take his word for conditions that did not exist.

The arrest of the physician and his indictment by the grand jury caused a profound sensation in the county. Insurance money and some property were alleged to furnish motives in part for bringing about the woman's death. Chemical experts were called in, and analyses made, and the prosecution has for months been preparing its case, which has attracted attention far and wide.

Dr. Brouwer, in his cell, has had almost daily conferences with his attorneys, and has received visits there from a host of friends, many of them women, who have offered financial aid to him in the battle for his life. He has always protested in the strongest terms that he is innocent.

"I am the victim of a terrible wrong," said the physician a few days ago. "I did not kill my wife. I never harmed a hair of her head. I have been kept a prisoner in this jail for months. My little children have been subjected to a notoriety that has almost broken my heart. But I am an innocent man, and I am facing my trial without fear. I know I will be acquitted."

Two Men Charged With Murder.

Honesdale, Pa., Oct. 9.—Charles McVeyand Michael Clune, of High Lake, are in the county jail here, charged with the murder of Patrick Furie, former tax collector of Preston township, Wayne county. Furie's body was found by the roadside, near Hikh Lake, on October 2 with the base of the skull crushed. The three men had been at Equinunk on the day the body was found, and Furie and McVey, it is said, quarreled. The coroner and district attorney investigated the case and caused the arrest of McVey and Clune.

HORRIBLY MANGLED BY ENGINE

Remains of Railroad Employe Gathered Up in Shovel.

Wilkes-Barre, Pa., Oct. 9. — Frank Villechuck, an Italian, was struck by an engine on a Lehigh Valley Railroad crossing in the heart of this city. His body was so horribly mangled that train hands at the depot were obliged to gather up the remains with a scoop shovel. The accident was witnessed by hundreds of horror-stricken people. The deceased was 20 years of age, married, and employed as a section hand on the Lehigh Valley.

Ended Life When Servant Left.

New York, Oct. 9.—Worry over the loss of a servant who had left her after many years of service is believed to have caused Mrs. Florence Unger to end her life. Mrs. Unger killed herself by inhaling illuminating gas while her husband was searching for a servant to take the place of the one who had gone. In a letter which Mrs. Unger left she said, "Good-by; I am tired and need rest."

Mentioned In The Dispatches

ROBERT BACON.

ROBERT BACON, first assistant secretary of state and peace commissioner to Cuba with Secretary Taft, was a member of the president's class at Harvard, the class of '80. The class numbers quite a few men who have won fame or fortune or both. One of them, Charles Pierce, a Boston millionaire, tells this story of Bacon's college days:

"When we were all in college together the roller skating craze was at its height. A crowd of boys went to a ring one night to see the fun. Bacon was of the number. He had never been on roller skates in his life. After he watched the people circle around for a few minutes he said in a half disgusted tone that any one could be a roller skater at the first trial.

"'Why,' said Bob, 'I bet I could put on a pair of skates and go around that rink the first time without falling.'

"He found plenty of takers at once. The bet we made was to be a dinner for the whole party. Well, Bob got a pair of skates and strapped them on. He started off pretty wabbly. Still he managed to keep going. He was a big fellow, and he seemed even bigger then as a boy than he does now as a man. His progress was pretty slow, but after awhile he got nearly around the rink, and we thought surely that we had lost. Just then a small boy who did not look more than two feet high alongside of Bob's six dashed out on the rink and ran slap into him. Bob went down with a bang that almost shook the building. As he slipped along his feet just came to the line which would have completed the circle. He got up, kicked the skates off, tossed them as far as he could and said, "The dinner is on me; come on, boys.'"

Congressman Herbert Parsons, president of the New York Republican county committee, who won a victory over the Odell-Quigg faction of the Republican party in the recent primaries, is a close friend of President Roosevelt and has some of the strenuous qualities for which the president is famous. His success in the battle at the primaries was due not a little to the energy and firmness he showed in meeting difficulties which arose in districts where rough elements were in control. He rode around in an automobile and wherever he found trouble pressed to the front at the risk of personal violence to himself and straightened things out. When he arrived at one primary voting place in a tough section he found "rough house" in progress. Parsons men were being knocked down as they approached the polling place, and one burst into the room while the county chairman was there with three anti-Parsons men on his back. He was rescued from his unpleasant position by the party leader, who then "read the riot act" to the police on duty and succeeded in restoring order.

HERBERT PARSONS

Mr. Parsons came out of the primary contests with a record as one of the gamest fighters who ever led the party organization in New York.

William B. Wilson, who has been named for member of congress from the Fifteenth Pennsylvania district by the Democrats, is a miners' leader and stands second to John Mitchell in influence among the members of the United Mine Workers of America. He is secretary and treasurer of this organization and during the big strike of 1902 was quite prominent, as it was his duty to disburse the funds, amounting to about $2,000,000 per month, contributed for the support of the striking miners. He has worked in the mines in all kinds of capacities. At one time it became impossible for him to secure work in any of the soft coal mines on account of his prominence as a labor organizer, and he then opened a mine on his own account on his own premises, digging, loading and selling the product himself. Mr. Wilson was once talking about business success.

W. B. WILSON.

"Success," said he, "is largely a matter of intelligence. So many men work stupidly, like the boy in the drug store. There was a boy clerking in a drug store to whom the druggist said: 'You sweep and clean well, but you're not as good a salesman as you should be. To be a good salesman you must push things a bit. Call each patron's attention to some article he needs. Thus you may often effect an extra sale.'

"'All right, sir,' said the boy.

"And that afternoon he said to an elderly woman who came for a stamp:

"'Anything else, ma'am—hair dye, cosmetic, wrinkle remover, face powder, mole destroyer, skin rejuvenator, flabby'—

"But, with an exclamation of annoyance, the woman hastened out before the alert boy was through his catalogue of the articles he thought she needed."

Bird S. Coler, president of the borough of Brooklyn, New York city, who figured recently in the Brooklyn Rapid Transit company's controversy over Coney Island fares, was the Democratic candidate for governor of New York against Benjamin B. Odell, Jr., in 1902, and before that he made a record as comptroller of New York.

President Coler was busy in his office in the Brooklyn borough hall a few months ago when the doorkeeper announced that William Garrison desired an audience with him.

"Show the gentleman in," said Mr. Coler.

To his astonishment a neatly dressed boy walked in and, bowing politely, asked:

"Are you the borough president?"

"I am," replied Mr. Coler.

BIRD S. COLER.

"Well," said the lad, "my name is Willie Garrison, and I live at 92 Boerum place. I'll be nine years old next Saturday, and I want you to have a parade on that day."

"A what?" gasped the borough president.

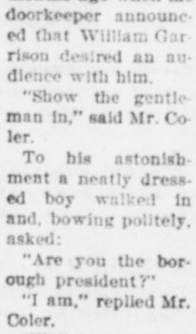
"Why, a parade," repeated Willie—"horses and soldiers and music and things like that, you know."

"I'm afraid I can't accommodate you next Saturday, Willie," said Mr. Coler, "but I'll tell you what to do. A week from Saturday there is to be a parade in honor of St. Patrick. Couldn't you postpone your celebration and take part in that?"

"Well, I guess that'll do," decided Willie. "I'll march in that parade."

With ceremony the borough president bowed his small visitor out.

General Arthur MacArthur, who succeeded to the rank of lieutenant general of the army when General Corbin went on the retired list on Sept. 15, is a dashing fighter and one of the handsomest men that ever wore shoulder straps. He joined the Union army when the civil war broke out as a boy of sixteen, and he looked even younger than he was. Just before the close of the war, upon the earnest request of the line officers and the recommendation of the lieutenant colonel commanding, Arthur MacArthur was made major of a veteran regiment before he was nineteen years old. This record was equaled only two or three times in an army of over a million men. General Grant would have recommended MacArthur after Missionary Ridge for promotion to the rank of brigadier general, but he could not put a youth of twenty over the veteran colonels and other field officers who had been in the service since 1861. In 1885 Captain MacArthur was strongly backed for a commission in the adjutant general's corps. Both Generals Grant and Sherman indorsed him, the first in more commendatory terms than he was in the habit of using, but Grant had seen MacArthur and his men go up an almost perpendicular cliff 200 feet high, with its top and crest lined with Confederate riflemen, who shot at every head as it emerged from the depths below. How the Union troops ever occupied Missionary Ridge has been the amazement of those who have read the story. "Well," said General MacArthur afterward, "I was young, and if the Twenty-fourth Wisconsin was going to make that climb I didn't mean to remain behind."



GENERAL ARTHUR MACARTHUR.

In seeking answers to such questions as the age of the human race scientists have recourse to the rocks and caves which contain records of prehistoric man. Some important discoveries of this nature have recently been made in the Pyrenees of Spain. The writer and scientist Garrett P. Serviss has described these discoveries by saying that, "as far as the evidence now in hand is able to inform us, man was a witness of only the last glacial invasion of Europe. If he saw the earlier ones, all traces of his presence have disappeared. The effect is, as a French writer remarks, greatly to 'rejuvenate' prehistoric man. Confining his presence to one instead of two glacial periods is about the same thing as cutting in half the estimate of his probable age."

GARRETT P. SERVISS.

Professor Serviss adds that, though we cannot be very exact in fixing the time that man has been on the earth, it is some satisfaction to limit prehistoric man to a certain geologic period. There are various ways of arriving at comparatively accurate estimates of the time that has elapsed since the last advance of the ice. Geologists are getting closer and closer to an agreement on this subject.

Astronomy is the field in which Mr. Serviss has become best known as a writer. He is the author of "Astronomy With an Opera Glass," "The Conquest of Mars," a semiscientific novel; "The Moon Metal," "Pleasures of the Telescope" and "Other Worlds." He was born at Sharon Springs, N. Y., in 1851, is a graduate of Cornell university and is journalist and lecturer as well as author.

Preacher Has Too Many Wives.

Columbus, O., Oct. 4.—A man who says he is Rev. George Lester Reynolds, former pastor of the First Baptist church of Fassig, Pa., a village near Elmira, N. Y., was taken into custody here by detectives and held for investigation. Reynolds, who is aged 43, was married here on September 24 to Cora Esther Ware, aged 23, who, he says, was a member of his church choir. When Reynolds applied for a license he said he was from Deposit, N. Y. The city detectives claim that he has a wife at Fassig from whom he has not been divorced. Reynolds admits that he was previously married.

Fatally Stricken at Fort McHenry.

Baltimore, Oct. 4.—Harry J. Jerome, general manager of the Union Steamship company, of San Francisco, and general eastern agent of the Union Oil company, died in the army hospital at Fort McHenry. Mr. Jerome was seized with convulsions in front of the Fort avenue entrance to the fort. He was borne to the hospital, where he recovered consciousness and was resting quietly, when he was taken with a second attack and died almost instantly.

Found Guilty of "Graft."

Pittsburg, Pa., Oct. 4.—The first of the sensational "graft" cases against three councilmen and other citizens was finished when the jury found Councilman Max Friedman guilty of having aided and abetted in the maintenance of a house for immoral purposes. The cases against Edward J. Edwards and Samuel Frankel, the other two councilmen, will be taken up at once.

Hoke Smith Elected Governor.

Atlanta, Ga., Oct. 4.—The regular state election held in Georgia resulted in the practically unanimous election of the Democratic nominees, headed by Hoke Smith for governor. The only opposition to the Democratic ticket were the Socialists, headed by J. B. Osborn.

Government Pays Interest.

Washington, Sept. 4.—Enlisted men enjoy the right to deposit their savings with army paymasters, and congress annually appropriates the sum necessary to pay interest on these deposits. The courtesy never has been extended to officers, but Lieutenant General Corbin in a report to the war department says the discrimination should be terminated, especially where it affects officers serving in remote stations in the Philippines and Alaska, where the usual banking facilities found at home are not available.

When a horse is so overworked it lies down and in other ways declares its inability to go further, you would consider it criminal to use forced. Many a man of impulses, who would not willingly harm a kitten, is guilty of cruelty where his own stomach is concerned. Overdriven, overworked, when what it needs is something that will digest the food eaten and help the stomach to recuperate. Something like Kodol For Dyspepsia that is sold by C. M. Parrish.

—A specific for pain—Dr. Thomas Electric Oil, strongest, cheapest, liniment ever devised A household remedy in America for 25 years.

For the Stomach Heart and Kidneys

Dr. Shoop's Restorative is a Cause Cure—not a Symptom Cure.

It is a common mistake to take artificial digesters for stomach troubles—or heart stimulants for weak heart—or so-called kidney remedies for diseased kidneys. These organs do not act separately or of their own accord—they have no control over themselves—and not once in 800 times is the sickness the fault of the organ. It is the fault of the nerves which control the organs and only through these nerves can stomach, kidney or heart disorders be cured. Dr. Shoop, of Racine, Wisconsin, learned early in his medical experience that these inside nerves were the power through which only was it possible to cure indigestion, heartburn, insomnia, backache, heart weakness, Bright's disease and other affections of the kidneys. For all of these ailments are not separate sicknesses, as such. They are not to be treated merely symptoms of inside nerve weakness, and when the nerves are restored the symptoms and the sickness disappear. The remedy which Dr. Shoop prescribed for these ailing nerves is known as Dr. Shoop's Restorative. It relieves the pain and distress of kidney, stomach and heart troubles quicker even than those medicines designed simply to give temporary relief. Dr. Shoop's Restorative (Tablets or Liquid) can now be had of druggists everywhere. For sale and recommended by

Politicians Craft on Public Utilities.

New York, October 9th. Reports received at political headquarters here indicate that Bryan's declaration in favor of government ownership was suggested to politicians in many states that a municipal ownership platform would attract voters, and in consequence, in many communities, unscrupulous politicians are advocating it in the hope of catching the popular vote and of making themselves a power in office if elected. They care nothing for the dangers to the municipality; they ignore the fact that many cities which have acquired their own plants for furnishing public utilities are eager to be rid of them; and that in many cities and towns they have been an utter and costly failure.

They find however that the cry for municipal ownership is most valuable to them, for it can be presented in such an attractive manner that it gains the support of thoughtless voters who will not realize what they have done is supporting it and its advocates until they are called upon, as taxpayers, to pay heavily for their folly.

The Columbus, Ohio, municipal lighting plant has already eaten up a fortune and proved a failure. An original investment of $63,000 has had to be increased to half a million and now the plant greedily requires $140,000 more for which the city councilmen are afraid to ask the citizens. As it is the city is now paying private companies $200 a night to light streets which the municipal plant cannot light.

La Porte, Indianan, which acquired a municipal water plant is in default on the payment of its bonds and interest since 1904 and suit has been commenced asking that the property be sold and a receiver appointed.

The citizens of Seattle last month after a careful investigation of municipal ownership plants voted against the city acquiring its own street railway.

Boston, Chicago, Omaha, Muncie and Marion, Ind., Richmond, Va., Wheeling, West Va., and many other cities have all had experience with municipal ownership which they regret and which cost them heavily.

Mr. Dairymple, the English expert on municipal ownership, after examination of conditions here, declared that municipal ownership could not be made a success in this country because of the dominant political conditions.

Experts recently reported at a convention of illuminating companies that at this moment municipal ownership in this country is a mere political expedient."

Other experts have made investigations for cities contemplating the purchase of private plants and converting them into municipal plants declare that in numerous instances of municipal ownership appointments to the public service are made on a basis of political favoritism with no adequate regard for the efficiency of the employees; that the administrative bodies are honeycomed with graft in the purchase of supplies; and that the public funds are not guarded with the same sense of economy as the funds of a private corporation.

A Little Trip Through Switzerland.

On Monday evening a parlor meeting will be held in the W. C. T. U., rooms, Petrikin Hall, and a little trip through the land of the wonderful Alps and beautiful lakes will be given by a returned tourist. Too frequently those who visit foreign lands, seeing so much and so hurridly return home with nothing very definite to impart, but the tourist who can so speak for a little while on Monday evening traveled with her eyes open, her sympathies alert, note book in hand and in an easy, entertaining manner will interest you from start to finish. You will be cordially welcome, no admission to pay but a silver offering will aid the workers.

Squirrels Not so Plenty.

The squirrel season, which opened Monday, was not a success, so far as getting a great number of the little animals by the many hunters, who early in the morning went out in search of them. Some of the hunters were lured into the woods by the reports that the squirrels were very plenty this year and on their return quite a number of them had a far different tale to tell, as they did not as much as get a shot. Others were more fortunate, some of whom got the limit.

The Old Dutch Cleaner.

When I find a good thing I like to pass it on so I want to recommend the Dutch Cleaners, as house cleaning is in the air. It comes in a perforated can, shake a little in your bucket of water and see how it cleans your windows and etc. I have never found its equal for porcelaine tubs and basins, and only 10 cents, try it.

—The two new fountains purchased by the borough council were received last week and this week were planted, one on each corner of the Diamond next the pavement in front of the court house yard. While the fountains are small and not very picturesque they will flow enough of water to satisfy the thirst of both man and beast, and this is the main object desired.

—The Henszey—Hamilton wedding at State College on Wednesday was made the occasion of the announcements of the engagement of Rev. Jay Woodcock and Miss Mabelle Thompson, only daughter of Mr. William Thompson, and Silas Whetmore, Esq., a prominent young attorney of Spartanesburg, S. —When you see so many young men with their hair parted in the middle and hanging down over their foreheads so as to obscure every trace of intellect, and so many young women with their hair all frizzly frowsly and flopping around over their faces in fifty different directions, we are not surprised that the followers of Darwin are now positively sure that mankind descended from the monkey.

One hundred and ten years from this date you will probably be paying the penalty for enjoying the pleasures of the methods in which you choose to spend this extra Sunday.

—Edward Lewis, a Williamsport Park hotel waiter, started Wednesday morning for Harrisburg and ran to take the eastbound flyer, which passes through Williamsport about 2 o'clock. As he caught the last coach and swung upon the steps he discovered it was a vestibuled car, with tht door shut. It is next to impossible to stay on the lower steps for any length of time, but Lewis was saved this unpleasantness, for as the train passed Walnut street the railroaders assembled at the crossing noticed him from the dispatcher's office communicated with Allen's tower, where the operator threw the red light on the train and brought it to a stand. Lewis was liberated uncathed, notwithstanding he had passed through such a tight place in going across the river bridge that his clothes were badly torn.

—On Tuesday morning there was recorded in the Recorder's office of Centre county a mortagage that made Deputy Recorder Will Rowe set up and take notice. A young unobstrusive looking attorney from New York walked in and planked down the mortgage saying he was having it recorded in seven different counties in Pennsylvania. The mortgage was for $20,000,000 and was against the Pittsburg Rochester & Eastern Railroad, a new road now being projected to tap the coal and lumber fields of Central Pennsylvania. The mortagage was in favor of the Knickerbocker Trust Company of New York city.

—A young mother chanced to occupy a seat in front of ours on a train last week, says Editor S. C. Hepler, of the New Bethlehem Leader, when an amusing incident occured. She was vainly endeavoring to quiet her youngster who was apparently about two years old. The young cherub had gormandized vast quantities of fruit nuts, etc., and seemed to be in great misery and positively refused to be comforted. Finally an old gentleman, who was sitting beside the distressed mother, and whom we took to be her father, remarked: "Jenny I'd larrup that kid" "Oh, I hate to whip a child on a full stomach," said she. "Looks to me like it 'ud be an easy matter to turn it over," was the quaint reply.

The Centre County Fair.

As we go to Press the Great Centre County Fair is in full progress on the Fair grounds. Owing to the cold dreary weather the attendance is not as large as was hoped for, but in spite of this probably 3000 people were in attendance Wednesday afternoon.

The weather permiting the fair this year promises to be better than ever before in its history. The management have made great preparations for the event, and only the inclemency of the weather can prevent it being a great success. The weather is quite cold and Wednesday afternoon there were several snow squals.

There is a splendid exhibit of the products of the fields, gardens and homes of Centre county. The exhibit of horses, cattle, sheep, swine and poultry is unusually large and fine.

On Wednesday afternoon candidates Emery, Creasy and Black visited the fair. In our next issue we hope to give a more complete description of the fair and the doings there.

Early this week Col. Edward R. Chambers, of Bellefonte, received an earnest invitation to join a party of spellbinders who are now touring the state in the interest of Stuart and the Republican ticket The Speakers bureau of the State committee had several requests from different counties in the state for Col. Chamber's services, Co'. Chambers through his postion as a member of the Governor's staff and as attorney for the Auditor General's department has made many friends and acquaintances over the state, hence the demand for his appearence on the stump.

Col, Chambers left Monday afternoon for Catawissa, Armstrong County, where their first meeting was held Tuesday night. He expects to be on the stump continously until the close of the campaign.

Cornering Market in Eels Fisherman's Aim.

John Pennington of Lewistown, has undertaken a corner in the eel market.

During the summer he paid his license and placed one of the modern eel baskets in the Juniata river 1,000 yards east of the Lewistown dam; 2,500 fresh water eels, weighing from one-half to five pounds each, were taked from this basket in one night. These have been placed in "live boxes" and will be kept until winter.

They are sold in the markets cleaned at 12 to 15 cents per pound. As they are much cheaper than meat they find a ready market.

It is estimated that more than three tons of eels, a wriggling, writhing, slimy mass, are now in the live boxes at the Pennington camp. The laws, it is said, have been fully observed, and the fish wardens are patrolling the river to see that no scale fish are taken in this manner. The heavy catch is due to the eels migrating east to deeper water for the winter months.

THE WANDERER RETURNED.

Samuel Ruhl Returned to His Home After Months of Absence.

Samuel Ruhl, son of Jonathan Ruhl, of Tylersville, who several months ago wandered away from his parents' home and for whom diligent search was made, also a liberal reward had been offered for any information concerning him, is now at his parents home having returned last week.

The young man is slightly demented, and this fact, in connection with his disappearance caused his parents a great of anxiety.

His father traced him to Jersey Shore and Williamsport, and traveled over a part of York state in search of him, and several reports that h had been found gained circulation. His people had about given up the hope of ever seeing him again, when last Wednesday morning he surprised his brother, who was at the curb market in Lock Haven by walking up to him.

His brother was indeed glad to see him and lost no time in getting ready to take him home, where he was joyfully received. He stated to the family that after leaving home he wandered up into Southern New York, where he hired out to do farm work and had been there up to the time of his departure for home.

The Academy Wins at Foot Ball.

The Bellefonte Academy football eleven overwhelmingly defeated the Lock Haven High School team on Saturday at the fair grounds by the score of 31 0

The running of Pantall, Tompkins, Acheson and Smith and the line bucking of McCarthy and Duremore were the features of the game. The spectators were much impressed with the clean playing of both teams. The new rules require a great improvement in this respect. The line up—

The groom's best man was Charles Bower, of Howard, but who is now a student at State College. The maid of honor was Miss Ollie Steele, a sister of the bride.

The beautiful ring ceremony was used, and the ring bearer was Margaret Crider, a niece of bride, and the flower girl was Catherine Steele, sister of the bride. Rev. James B. Stein, pastor of the Methodist Episcopal church, performed the ceremony, after which a wedding dinner was served. The bride is a most estimable young lady, and for a number of years had been a clerk in the Racket Store. ## CLYDE AUMAN KILLED

Shot While on a Chestnut Tree by Some Unknown Person.

Wednesday afternoon Clyde Auman, a 12 year old son of Joe Auman, of Penn Twp., was shot and killed by some unknown person. The particulars as we got them by phone are as follows:

John Rider was passing along the road near the home of Jacob Sanders, who lives two miles west of Coburn and not far from Rhodes mill. As he passed by a chestnut tree that stood close to the road he saw the boy lying under the tree bleeding and bruised. Examination showed that his body was riddled by a load of shot and that he had fallen from the tree. No gun was found near where he lay which indicates that some one close shot him.

He was taken to the home of his parents and Dr. Frank, of Millheim was summoned but the boy died at about 6 p. m.—Centre Democrat.

Rev. J. A. Wood in California.

The following, concerning a former member of the Central Pennsylvania Methodist Episcopal conference and for several years pastor of the Methodist Episcopal church of Bellefonte is taken from the reports of the Methodist Episcopal conference held at Riverside, California, last week. The information is from the Los Angeles Times of Friday last:

"Matters have become a little more complicated by the appearance on the scene of Dr. J. A. Wood, whose father died in the Methodist harness at South Pesadena, not many months ago, and the son has come to be with his widowed mother. Dr. Wood has been in the service for many years, and comes directly from the leading pulpits in Central Pennsylvania Conference, Tyrone, Bellefonte, Lock Haven, Williamsport and Curwensville are pulpits that only an able preacher can command. He has not yet been transferred to this conference, but hopes to be, and his eminent standing in the East has caused his name to be associated with West Adams Church, of Los Angeles, for which Dr. McLish is elated. The suggestion comes from one in close touch with affairs, and who can see through a stone wall, as far as the next fellow, that there are prospects that Dr. McLish may be transferred to Topeka."

The West Adams street church is just a new congregation and is in the most aristocratic section of Los Angeles. It has now a membership of only 200 but is erecting a church that when completed will cost about $60,000.
